PLANE PREPARES FOR OCEAN HOP

STULTZ WILL PILOT HUGE FOKKER WITH WOMAN COMPANION

Miss Amelia Earhart
Would Be First To Fly Atlantic

TREPASSEY BAY, Newfoundland, June 4.—The trans-Atlantic plane, "Friendship," bearing Wilmer Stultz, Amelia Earhart and Lou Gordon arrived here from Halifax, N. S., at 2:28 o'clock, local time.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 4.—The trans-Atlantic plane "Friendship," carrying Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Louis Gordon, hopped off at 9:30 this morning, daylight time, for Trepassey, Newfoundland, on the second leg of its trip to Europe. Weather conditions were perfect.

The three flyers were in high spirits, and confident of their ability to guide the huge three-motored plane across the North Atlantic. They made an unexpected stop here yesterday because of fog which covered the remainder of the route to Trepassey, where they had intended to make their first stop for fuel. Pilot Stultz brought the plane, which is equipped with pontoons, down to the harbor waters in a perfect landing, after a successful flight from Boston, the starting point of the expedition.

The distance from here to Trepassey is about 250 miles. From there after inspecting their engines and refilling their tanks, the fliers will take off over the long water jump. If conditions are favorable, the take-off from Trepassey may be made later today.

Miss Earhart hopes to be the first woman flier to successfully cross the North Atlantic ocean in a non-stop flight. She will relieve Stultz at the controls during their contemplated flight to England. She is a capable pilot, having more than 500 hours of solo flying to her credit.

The greatest secrecy shrouded the preparations for the flight. The plane, a Fokker, officially recorded as the NX-204, was purchased from Commander Richard E. Byrd, who originally intended using it on his forthcoming Antarctic expedition. Preparations for the flight had been going on for weeks, but the announcement of the sale of the plane was not made until last Friday.

Except that the Friendship is equipped with pontoons, it is almost an exact replica of the Southern Cross, which is now winging its way over the Pacific.

Miss Earhart served in the Canadian Red Cross as a nurse throughout 1917 and 1918. Later she went to California where she took up aviation.

Stultz jumped into the limelight last year as the pilot of Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane Dawn in its first take-off. Engine trouble developed on the ill-fated plane when the ship was several hundred miles out at sea, but Stultz managed to bring it back to Old Orchard Beach, Me., in safety. Later the Dawn was lost, with Mrs. Grayson and two men aboard.

Gordon hails from San Antonio, Texas, where he was born in 1901. He served in the army air service from 1919 to 1926. For the last two years he has been associated with the Reynolds Airways Corporation as a flight mechanic.

Fully loaded, including the weight of its three passengers, the plane weighs a little more than six tons.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., June 4.—Weather conditions at Trepassey Island, next stop on the proposed trans-Atlantic flight of Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Louis Gordon, were reported as perfect today. There was a gentle wind from the northwest, the sky was clear and there was no sign of fog. All was in readiness for a landing.

MINNEOLA, N. Y., June 4.—Mrs. Wilmer Stultz, wife of the pilot of the tri-motored Fokker monoplane, the Friendship, now on the first leg of a trans-oceanic flight, did not know of her husband's contemplated plans until she arrived from Boston at her home here early today, twelve hours after her husband had made a safe landing with the plane at Halifax, N. S. She nearly fainted when she learned the news.

Mrs. Stultz said that she did not believe her husband had started on an ocean flight. She declared she had been in Boston at the time of the start, but had not seen the takeoff. She had been given to understand that her husband was going to Newfoundland with the plane on a test flight for Commander Byrd, she said.

YELLOW SPRINGS WOMAN IS KILLED

GIRL REPORTER'S QUICK THINKING SOLVED MURDER

Miss Margrete Daney

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

TOLEDO, O., June 4.—A clue given by a woman newspaper reporter enabled Toledo detectives to track down Charles Hoppe, 26, and a few hours later obtain his confession that it was he who kidnaped Dorothy Szelangowski, 7, from her bed and murdered her after one of the most brutal crimes in Ohio's history.

Margrete Daney, 27, a feature writer on the Toledo Blade, had been sent to the scene of the crime to obtain a so-called "sob story." She was standing on the front porch of a relative of the slain child's, where the body had been thrown by Hoppe after the crime, when she overheard a conversation between some of the little girl's chums. It provided the clue.

Newspaper extras being sold among the crowd told of how the slayer had bitten the girl in numerous places on her body. The marks were peculiar in that there was a vacant space in each, showing that the slayer had a tooth missing in front. Too, it was known that the slayer knew the family, because he stopped at the bed occupied by Dorothy and two other sisters and asked one "Where is Dorothy?"

This, the clue "Why, Charley, who used to live at Dorothy's house, has a tooth missing in front," the woman re-

PRESIDENT'S NAME WILL COME BEFORE CONVENTION NEXT WEEK

Anti-Hoover Die-Hards Persist In Plan To "Draft Coolidge"—Report Executive Has Written Letter Meeting Situation

KANSAS CITY, June 4.—The name of Calvin Coolidge quite probably will be presented to the Republican national convention here next week and voted upon—unless and until the president, by some positive definite action, forbids it.

This much seemed assured today as the G. O. P. elders gathered in Kansas City and got down to the actual work of the convention, the first of which is the settlement of the perennial quarrels among the lily-whites and the black-and-tans of the always Democratic south.

The "draft Coolidge whether or no" movement reached Kansas City in the person of Charles D. Hillis, the New York national committee man, who has been the chief rallying post for the anti-Hoover forces of the east. Like a sentinel pine Hillis has stood out against the gale-like winds that have blown many of the other leaders into the Hoover camp. He may have swayed several times, but he has never fallen.

Who will present the magic name of Coolidge, if it is to be formally presented to the convention; who will lead the fight in the open and behind the scenes, Mr. Hillis did not say. But he appeared quite confident that when the balloting begins ten days hence there will be a lot of votes to be added in the column that carries at its masthead the name of Calvin Coolidge.

For such a contingency as his name being presented to the convention. There are reports that he has written a letter which has been entrusted to a "spokesman" and which is to be read to the convention when and if his name is presented. Almost everyone in Kansas City has heard of such a letter, but no one has seen it and, in fact, no one can be found who has heard of anyone that has seen it.

Friends of William M. Butler, chairman of the national committee, who naturally would be the president's spokesman in such a matter, deny emphatically that Mr. Butler has any such missive. Others whose names have been linked in the gossip are equally emphatic in their denials. Hence, the conclusion reached by the drafters is that no such letter is in existence at least, yet, and in that situation they are going ahead with their plans.

They can, in fact, do little else but go ahead. To haul down their flag now, at this stage of the proceedings, would be tantamount to admitting the impossibility of "stopping Hoover." Half the New York delegation of ninety votes, a dozen votes in Illinois, nearly all of Pennsylvania, a whole flock in New England, and a lot in the south were being held outside the Hoover column on the "draft Coolidge" plea. The anti-Hoover leaders can't let go.

NOW LADY LINDY!

Air Heroine Looks More Like "Lone Eagle" Than Lindbergh Himself.

BOSTON, June 4.—Lady Lindy!

Today America has a heroine of the vaulted spaces capable of intriguing the imagination like Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Tall, slight, with curly, yellow, bobbed hair, Miss Amelia Earhart, thirty, who is co-pilot of the London-bound monoplane Friendship, bears remarkable resemblance to Lindbergh, whose air trail she is following.

"She looks more like Lindbergh than Lindbergh himself," declared Brynjulf Standaen, Norwegian artist, who made life portrait studies of Lindy and who was in Boston last week.

And like Lindbergh Miss Earhart, college girl, settlement worker, former holder of the altitude championship for women and veteran of 500 solo hours of flying has an infectious smile that wins one and all.

Undoubtedly, it prompted a deck hand, who watched as she boarded the Friendship just before its pontoons scudded aloft from the waters of Boston Harbor, to cry out while he pointed a smuggy paw: "Lady Lindy!"

SENATE COMMITTEE WILL PROBE CHARGE FEDERAL JOBS SOLD

Brookhart To Lead Quiz Into Postal Scandal Report

WASHINGTON, June 4.—An exhaustive investigation of charges that postmasterships have been bought and sold in the South was promised today by Senator Brookhart (R) of Iowa, chairman of the special investigating committee named by the senate.

The committee will be set under way shortly after the Republican National Convention and will continue its inquiry all during the summer, Brookhart said.

"Whether there is any merit in the charges that public offices have been bartered away in the South I do not know, but if the charges are true the thing ought to be rooted out," said Brookhart.

The committee will go into every phase of the matter and give all sides an opportunity to be heard. The investigation, resulting from the joint demand of Senators Harris and George, Democrats, of Georgia, will be the first ever conducted in this field.

It was brought about largely by the sensational suicide of L. S. Peterson, postmaster at Douglas, Ga., who left correspondence on which the Georgia senators based charges that the job was bought and sold.

Republican national committee-men especially will come under the scrutiny of the committee.

The first witness probably will be Postmaster-General Hunt. After a conference with the postmaster-general, Harris and George announced that they had asked for full cooperation in the inquiry and promised that they would exert every effort to give a "square deal" to everyone involved.

The Georgia senators will present the Peterson and other cases, while the Southern senators and congressmen are expected to appear before the committee. After a hearing at Atlanta, the committee probably will go to Nashville, Tenn., Brookhart said.

"We have had many complaints which we will ask be investigated," said Harris. "We believe that the investigation will bear out the repeated charges made by the postmastership have been placed on the bargain counter in the South."

Committee members assisting Brookhart in the inquiry are: Senators Dale (R) of Vermont; Pine (R) of Oklahoma; George (D) of Georgia and Hefflin (D) of Alabama.

As soon as the train stopped the troops formed a strong cordon about their chief and he was driven in an armored motor car to his former residence.

During his former residence of Mukden Chang was known as the "Manchurian war lord."

A committee has been formed here to administer the affairs of the city until the officers of the Nationalist army arrive. They are expected to declare martial law to make it easier to prevent looting.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER FORMER DICTATOR; HIS TRAIN BOMBED

Conflicting Reports Of Coup While Chang Escaping

PEKING, June 4.—An attempt to assassinate or capture Marshal Chang Tso Lin, former dictator of the Peking government and head of the North China armies, marked his dramatic flight in an armored train from Peking to Mukden, where he arrived today.

Marshal Chang's train was bombed just outside of Mukden. There are conflicting reports as to the results. It was rumored that Chang was slightly wounded and that several members of his body guard were killed. Later it was reported that Chang had escaped unhurt.

The bombs had been placed on a bridge and exploded as the train was passing over it.

Thirty alleged southern (Nationalist) soldiers dressed in civilian clothing are reported to have been killed when a large group of Chinese, acting suspiciously, closed in upon the train. It is believed that they plotted to seize Chang.

Word was received here that Japanese troops had arrested two Chinese with bombs in their possession. The telegram gave no details but it indicated that the Chinese had been seized somewhere along the railway line in Manchuria.

A telegram from Mukden giving fresh details of the journey said that it was marked by danger and adventure throughout. The cars were armored, with machine gun nozzles extending through port-holes along each side of the train. The bodyguard accompanying Chang was made up of picked troops heavily armed. The locomotive proceeded slowly most of the way for fear that bridges had been wrecked or rails torn up. The bomb explosion took place at 5 o'clock in the morning, about an hour before the train drew into the Mukden station.

As soon as the train stopped the troops formed a strong cordon about their chief and he was driven in an armored motor car to his former residence.

During his former residence of Mukden Chang was known as the "Manchurian war lord."

FATALLY HURT WHEN STRUCK BY MACHINE NEAR CEDARVILLE

Mrs. Nellie Rise, 38,
Dies In Springfield
City Hospital

Injuries sustained when she was struck by an automobile driven by a Columbus man, about a mile and one-half north of Cedarville on the Clifton Pike, at 6 p. m. Sunday, proved fatal to Mrs. Nellie Rise, 38, of near Yellow Springs, who died at Springfield City Hospital at 11:30 p. m.

The woman suffered a skull fracture, which caused her death, in addition to fractures of the left arm and leg. She never regained consciousness after the accident.

Mrs. Rise is said to have been knocked down by an auto driven by a man who gave his name as A. G. Wyatt, 1602 Neil Ave., Columbus, professor of civil engineering at Ohio State University, who was on his way to Columbus and was driving from Clifton toward Cedarville.

Wyatt is said to have declared the woman stepped from behind the auto in which she had been riding and started to cross the road. The Columbus autoist continued toward her and when she started back, he swerved his machine in a futile effort to avoid striking her. His machine crashed into a fence.

Witnesses exonerated Wyatt from responsibility.

Another man and a boy also occupied the Wyatt car.

The Yellow Springs woman, accompanied by her brother, Lester LeVelly, near Springfield, had parked their machine to repair a tire shortly before the accident occurred.

The fatally injured woman was removed to the Springfield hospital by her brother. The brother told hospital attendants that the driver of the auto which struck his sister, stopped and gave his name and address to him.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester LeVelly, near Springfield; three brothers, Jacob and Lester LeVelly, near Springfield, and Albert LeVelly, near Xenia; four sisters, Mrs. Anna Cline, Yellow Springs; Mrs. Clint Shaw and Mrs. Sylvia McLanahan, both of Springfield, and Mrs. Mary Mellenhausen, Xenia.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

NEW EXPERIENCE FOR LANDLORD

CHICAGO, June 4.—When James Crawford's "for rent" sign drew a prospective tenant to his apartment, Crawford was asked about other tenants. "Do they pay their rent?" asked the obvious flat seeker. "They do indeed," replied the landlord.

"Then hand it over," demanded the party of the second part who suddenly produced a revolver.

He relieved Crawford of $1,000 in currency and fled.

KENTUCKIAN SLAIN

MIDDLETOWN, O., June 4.—Arnold Begley, 37, Perry County, Kentucky, is charged with murder and his 16-year-old son, Emery, is held as a witness following the death of Kelsey Smith, 30, a Kentuckian who recently moved into Butler County.

The men are said to have quarreled in Smith's barn, when Smith was fatally shot.

HELEN WINS

AUTEUIL, France, June 4.—Playing a steady, brilliant game, Miss Helen Wills of California, today won the French women's singles tennis championship in the international hard court tennis championship tournament. Miss Wills defeated Miss Eileen Bennett, of England, her opponent in the finals by 6-1, 6-2.

LOW FRANC VALUE

PARIS, June 4.—A sensation was caused today by a report that the Poincare government may stabilize the franc at between four and five cents (United States money value). It had been believed that the government planned to stabilize the franc at ten or twelve cents. The normal value is .193 cents.

NEW HOME HEADS

The Rev. J. Norman King (above) and Mrs. King (below), new superintendent and chief matron at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home were expected at the institution Monday to relieve Miss E. Jane Bailey, acting superintendent and assume the positions to which they were appointed a week ago.

PLANE TWO-THIRDS OF FLIGHT TOWARD SMALL ISLAND GOAL

Flyers Apparently Making Good Time On 3,100 Mile Hop

HONOLULU, T. H., June 4.—The radio corporation station here picked up a message from the Southern Cross at 3:30 a. m. today (Hawaiian Island time), saying:

"Doing fine. Expecting to sight land soon, but not so clear as expected."

The huge monoplane was believed to be past the Phoenix group of islands at the time the message was flashed. This would place it nearly two-thirds of the 3100 mile distance between Honolulu and Suva, its destination on the hop.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 4.—The trans-Pacific plane Southern Cross was over the Phoenix Islands on its hop from Kaula, Hawaii, to Suva, Fiji Islands, at 1:34 p. m. (Greenwich Mean Time) or 8:34 a. m. (New York Daylight Saving Time), said a radiogram from C. E. Kingsford-Smith, co-pilot of the machine, today.

Phoenix Islands south of the equator approximately 1,800 statute miles from Kaula.

Wireless stations along the eastern coast of Australia kept in continuous touch throughout the day with the flight of the Southern Cross.

By midnight the trans-Pacific airmen had crossed the equator and were approaching Phoenix Islands.

Australian radio stations will watch the balance of the flight step by step until Australia is reached. In the event anything goes wrong with the mechanism of the Southern Cross the Australian stations will be on the alert for an

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS MEETS; PLANS ARE CHANGED

Illness Of Briand And Stressemann Changes Program

GENEVA, June 4.—Two of the most spectacular and dominant delegates were absent today when the fifth session of the League of Nations council met at noon. They were Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, and Gustave Stressemann, foreign secretary of Germany. Both were kept away by illness.

It had been anticipated that the American proposals for a treaty outlawing war would be discussed in detail in informal conferences here, but the absence of the French and German statesmen knocked out any such plan. It is likely, however, that Dr. Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, will take advantage of the occasion to discuss the American proposals with Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary.

Gen. Betancourt, of Cuba, opened the session with a speech reviewing the work that has been done. Afterwards it was announced that the council has accepted a donation of $60,000 from the Rockefeller foundation to fight epidemics and that a gift of $5,000 from the American Social Hygiene Association has been accepted for use in improving the social conditions of children.

A report will be made by the committee which investigated the secret shipment of machine guns from Italy into Hungary. The Polish-Lithuanian boundary dispute will again be brought forward, but there will be no definite of Lithuania, will explain the obstacles which have arisen in the way of a solution.

The security and arbitration committee of the preparatory disarmament commission will meet on June 27.

WILL TEST PLANE

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 4.—Captain Cesare Sabeli, Roger Williams and Piero Bonelli, who plan a non-stop flight from New York to Rome in the giant plane Roma, will make a test flight at Hartford, Conn., today.

TOLEDO AIR MAIL PORT DEDICATED

TOLEDO, O., June 4.—Toledo residents this morning were reading their air mail delivered at the Toledo Airport, for the first time today. The new airport was dedicated before a crowd of 5,000 yesterday afternoon. Army fliers from Selfridge Field, Mich., contributed an air circus during the ceremony.

Among the prominent persons at the ceremony were: Harry H. H. H., chief of the airports section of the aeronautical branch of the department of commerce; Col. Paul Henderson, of the National Transport, Inc.; W. B. Stout, chief of the Stout Air Services of Detroit; Brig. Gen. W. E. Gilmore, assistant chief of the air corps, of Dayton, and the trans-Atlantic fliers Brock and Schlee, who landed on the new field with their ship, "Pride of Detroit."

COOLIDGE QUIZZED BY PEOPLE'S LOBBY

WASHINGTON, June 4.—"Would your wife or you want your son to risk his life in marine rule in Nicaragua? If not, what right have you to send the marines there?"

These questions were asked President Coolidge today in an open letter from the people's lobby which protested marine occupation of Nicaragua.

A proposed loan to the Diaz regime and a proposed survey for a canal in Nicaragua apparently are efforts "to make marine rule stick in Nicaragua," the letter said.

STATEN ISLAND CAR SERVICE CRIPPLED

NEW YORK, June 4.—All trolley car service on Staten Island will be suspended at noon today when motormen, switchmen and shopmen of the Richmond Railways Company walk out on strike. More than 15,000 commuters to Manhattan and Brooklyn will have to find a new way to reach their homes tonight. The strike was voted after the workers had learned the company had refused to grant a ten-cent an hour increase in wages.

SUPREME COURT RESUMES SESSION

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The Supreme Court will begin its annual summer recess after the delivery of opinions today. As the court convened, it had before it submitted cases which could be disposed of in twelve opinions, thirty-two applications for writs of review and several motions. Several hundred cases on file, but not reached for argument because briefs had not been submitted, will be before the court when it convenes on October 1.

The first witness probably will be Postmaster-General Hunt. After a conference with the postmaster-general, Harris and George announced that they had asked for full cooperation in the inquiry and promised that they would exert every effort to give a "square deal" to everyone involved.

The Georgia senators will present the Peterson and other cases, while the Southern senators and congressmen are expected to appear before the committee. After a hearing at Atlanta, the committee probably will go to Nashville, Tenn., Brookhart said.

"We have had many complaints which we will ask be investigated," said Harris. "We believe that the investigation will bear out the repeated charges made the postmasterships have been placed on the bargain counter in the South."

Committee members assisting Brookhart in the inquiry are Senators Dale (R) of Vermont; Pine (R) of Oklahoma; George (D) of Georgia and Hefflin (D) of Alabama.

WILL QUIZ POLICE ABOUT RUM RUNNING

NEW YORK, June 4.—Police of the marine division will be closely questioned today to learn what they know of anything of rum running activities on the Hudson river which led to the suspension of eighteen United States customs guards.

Twenty patrolmen and four sergeants of the marine division were ordered to report to police headquarters at once.

MINISTER DROWNS
DAYTON, O., June 4.—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for Rev. George A. Wahl, 50, United Brethren minister, who was drowned in Mad River Saturday when he slipped from a rock while fishing. He came here from Lewisburg.

FLYERS ALOFT
PARIS, June 4.—Capt. Orachart and Capt. Rignot, two French aviators, who hopped off at 5:50 yesterday morning in an effort to break the long distance flight record, were still aloft today so far as known here. No word had been received of their landing.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER FORMER DICTATOR; HIS TRAIN BOMBED

Conflicting Reports Of Coup While Chang Escaping

PEKING, June 4.—An attempt to assassinate or capture Marshal Chang Tso Lin, former dictator of the Peking government and head of the North China armies, marked his dramatic flight in an armored train from Peking to Mukden, where he arrived today.

Marshal Chang's train was bombed just outside of Mukden. There are conflicting reports as to the result. It was rumored that Chang was slightly wounded and that several members of his body guard were killed. Later it was reported that Chang had escaped unhurt.

The bombs had been placed on a bridge and exploded as the train was passing over it.

Thirty alleged southern (Nationalist) soldiers dressed in civilian clothing are reported to have been killed when a large group of Chinese, acting suspiciously, closed in upon the train. It is believed that they plotted to seize Chang.

Word was received here that Japanese troops had arrested two Chinese with bombs in their possession. The telegram gave no details but it indicated that the Chinese had been seized somewhere along the railway line in Mukden.

A telegram from Munkhuk giving fresh details of the journey said that it was marked by danger and adventure throughout. The cars were armored, with machine gun nozzles extending through port holes along each side of the train. The bodyguard accompanying Chang was made up of picked troops heavily armed. The locomotive proceeded slowly most of the way for fear that bridges had been wrecked or rails torn up. The bomb explosion took place at 5 o'clock in the morning, about an hour before the train drew into the Mukden station.

As soon as the train stopped the troops formed a strong cordon about their chief and he was driven in an armored motor car to his former residence.

During his former residence of Mukden Chang was known as the "Manchurian war lord."

A committee has been formed here to administer the affairs of the city until the officers of the Nationalist army arrive. They are expected to declare martial law to make it easier to prevent looting.

HELEN WINS

AUTEUIL, France, June 4.—Playing a steady, brilliant game, Miss Helen Wills of California, today won the French women's singles tennis championship in the international hard court tennis championship tournament. Miss Wills defeated Miss Eileen Bennett, of England, her opponent in the finals by 6-1, 6-2.

LOW FRANC VALUE
PARIS, June 4.—A sensation was caused today by a report that the Poincare government may stabilize the franc at between four and five cents (United States money value). It had been believed that the government planned to stabilize the franc at ten or twelve cents. The normal value is .193 cents.

FATALLY HURT WHEN STRUCK BY MACHINE NEAR CEDARVILLE

Mrs. Nellie Rise, 38,
Dies In Springfield
City Hospital

Injuries sustained when she was struck by an automobile driven by a Columbus man, about a mile and one-half north of Cedarville on the Clifton Pike, at 6 p. m. Sunday, proved fatal to Mrs. Nellie Rise, 38, of near Yellow Springs, who died at Springfield City Hospital at 11:30 p. m.

The woman suffered a skull fracture, which caused her death, in addition to fractures of the left arm and leg. She never regained consciousness after the accident.

Mrs. Rise is said to have been knocked down by an auto driven by a man who gave his name as A. G. Wyatt, 1602 Neil Ave., Columbus, professor of civil engineering at Ohio State University, who was on his way to Columbus and was driving from Clifton toward Cedarville.

Wyatt is said to have declared the woman stepped from behind the auto in which she had been riding and started to cross the road. The Columbus autoist continued toward her and when she started back, he swerved his machine in a futile effort to avoid striking her. His machine crashed into a fence.

Witnesses exonerated Wyatt from responsibility.

Another man and a boy also occupied the Wyatt car.

The Yellow Springs woman, accompanied by her brother, Lester LeValley, near Springfield, had parked their machine to repair a tire shortly before the accident occurred.

The fatally injured woman was removed to a Springfield hospital by her brother. The brother told hospital attendants that the driver of the auto which struck his sister, stopped and gave his name and address to him.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester LeValley, near Springfield; three brothers, Jacob and Lester LeValley, near Springfield, and Albert LeValley, near Xenia; four sisters, Mrs. Anna Cline, Yellow Springs; Mrs. Clint Shaw and Mrs. Sylvia McLaughlin, both of Springfield, and Mrs. Mary Mellenhahn, Xenia.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

NEW EXPERIENCE FOR LANDLORD

CHICAGO, June 4.—When James Crawford's "for rent" sign drew a prospective tenant to his apartment, Crawford was asked about other tenants. "Do they pay their rent?" asked the obvious flat seeker.

"They do indeed," replied the landlord.

"Then hand it over," demanded the party of the second part who suddenly produced a revolver.

He relieved Crawford of $1,000 in currency and fled.

KENTUCKIAN SLAIN

MIDDLETOWN, O., June 4.—Arnold Begley, 37, Perry County, Kentucky, is charged with murder and his 16-year-old son, Emery, is held as a witness following the death of Kelsey Smith, 30, a Kentuckian who recently moved into Butler County.

The men are said to have quarreled in Smith's barn, when Smith was fatally shot.

YOUTH SLAIN FROM AMBUSH IN MASSILLON; MOTIVE MISSING

MASSILLON, O., June 4.—Police today were continuing efforts to discover the motive for the fatal shooting of Lester Boyd, 17, member of a prominent Massillon family here. Young Boyd was shot from ambush near midnight Saturday night and died shortly afterward.

Apparently the youth had been waylaid as he returned from the home of Ellen Fichter, 16, whom he had escorted home from a church festival. A bullet from a .32 calibre

NEW HOME HEADS

The Rev. J. Norman King (above) and Mrs. King (below), new superintendent and chief matron at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home were expected at the institution Monday to relieve Miss E. Jane Bailey, acting superintendent and assume the positions to which they were appointed a week ago.

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS MEETS; PLANS ARE CHANGED

Illness Of Briand And Stresmann Changes
Program

GENEVA, June 4.—Two of the most spectacular and dominant delegates were absent today when the fifth session of the League of Nations council met at noon. They were Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, and Gustave Stresemann, foreign secretary of Germany. Both were kept away by illness.

It had been anticipated that the American proposals for a treaty outlawing war would be discussed in detail in informal conferences here, but the absence of the French and German statesmen knocked out any such plan. It is likely, however, that Dr. Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, will take advantage of the occasion to discuss the American proposals with Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary.

Gen. Bettancourt, of Cuba, opened the session with a speech reviewing the work that has been done. Afterwards it was announced that the council has accepted a donation of $60,000 from the Rockefeller foundation to fight epidemics and that a gift of $5,000 from the American Social Hygiene Association has been accepted for use in improving the social conditions of children.

A report will be made by the committee which investigated the secret shipment of machine guns from Italy into Hungary.

The Polish-Lithuanian boundary dispute will again be brought forward, but there will be no definite Lithuanian, will explain the obstacles which have arisen in the way of a solution.

The security and arbitration committee of the preparatory disarmament commission will meet on June 27.

WILL TEST PLANE

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 4.—Captain Cesare Sabellico, Roger Williams and Piero Bonelli, who plan a non-stop flight from New York to Rome in the giant plane Roma, will make a test flight to Hartford, Conn., today.

PLANE TWO-THIRDS OF FLIGHT TOWARD SMALL ISLAND GOAL

Flyers Apparently Making
Good Time On
3,100 Mile Hop

HONOLULU, T. H., June 4.—The radio corporation station here picked up a message from the Southern Cross at 3:30 a. m. today (Hawaiian Island time), saying:

"Doing fine. Expecting to sight land soon, but not so clear as expected."

The huge monoplane was believed to be past the Phoenix group of islands at the time the message was flashed. This would place it nearly two-thirds of the 3100 mile distance between Honolulu and Suva, its destination on the hop.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 4.—The trans-Pacific plane Southern Cross was over the Phoenix Islands on its hop from Kauai, Hawaii, to Suva, Fiji Islands, at 1:34 p. m. (Greenwich Mean Time) or 8:34 a. m. (New York Daylight Saving Time), said a radiogram from C. E. Kingsford-Smith, co-pilot of the machine, today.

Phoenix Islands south of the equator approximately 1,800 statute miles from Kauai.

Wireless stations along the eastern coast of Australia kept in continuous touch throughout the day with the flight of the Southern Cross.

By midnight the trans-Pacific airmen had crossed the equator and were approaching Phoenix Islands.

Australian radio stations will watch the balance of the flight step by step until Australia is reached. In the event anything goes wrong with the mechanism of the Southern Cross the Australian stations will be on the alert for an

TOLEDO, O., June 4.—Toledo residents this morning were reading their air mail delivered at the Toledo Airport, for the first time today. The new airport was dedicated before a crowd of 5,000 yesterday afternoon.

Terliff, Mich., contributed an air circus during the ceremony. Among the prominent persons at the ceremony were: Harry H. Bies, chief of the airports section of the aeronautical branch of the department of commerce; Col. Paul Henderson, of the National Transport, Inc.; W. B. Stout, chief of the Stout Air Services of Detroit; Brig. Gen. W. E. Gilmore, assistant chief of the air corps, of Dayton, and the trans-Atlantic fliers Brock and Schlee, who landed on the new field with their ship, "Pride of Detroit."

COOLIDGE QUIZZED BY PEOPLE'S LOBBY

WASHINGTON, June 4.—"Would your wife and you want your son John to risk his life in marine rule in Nicaragua? If not, what right have you to send the marines there?"

These questions were asked President Coolidge today in an open letter from the people's lobby which protested marine occupation of Nicaragua.

A proposed loan to the Diaz regime and a proposed survey for a canal in Nicaragua apparently are efforts "to make marine rule stick in Nicaragua," the letter said.

STATEN ISLAND CAR SERVICE CRIPPLED

NEW YORK, June 4.—All trolley car service on Staten Island will be suspended at noon today when motormen, switchmen and shopmen of the Richmond Railways Company walk out on strike. More than 15,000 commuters to Manhattan and Brooklyn will have to find a new way to reach their homes tonight. The strike was voted after the workers learned the company had refused to grant a ten-cent an hour increase in wages.

SUPREME COURT RESUMES SESSION

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The Supreme Court will begin its annual summer recess after the delivery of opinions today.

As the court convened, it had before it submitted cases which could be disposed of in twelve opinions, thirty-two applications for writs of review and several motions.

Several hundred cases on file, but not reached for argument because briefs had not been submitted, will be before the court when it convenes on October 1.

MANY DEFENDANTS NAMED IN ACTION TO QUIET LAND TITLE

Suit to quiet their alleged title to property located in Bath Twp., has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Edward L. Prestel, R. R. No. 4, Osborn and Walter Henne, as executor of the estate of Minnie Henne, deceased.

The following defendants are named in the action: Chester L. Smith and Ethel Smith, his wife; Ida M. Campbell and James C. Campbell, her husband; Isaac R. Shupp and Carrie Shupp, his wife; Frank C. Hubbell and Virginia B. Hubbell, his wife; Daniel C. Broadbeck and Ida Broadbeck, his wife; David Watts and Ada Watts, his wife, and their unknown heirs, living or dead; William Bellau, alias William Bellow and Anna Bellau, alias Anna Bellow, and their unknown heirs; Daniel Lang and Pearl Lang, his wife, and their unknown heirs; Simon McPherson, whose marital status is unknown and McPherson, his wife, whose real Christian name is unknown, and their unknown heirs; Isaac Naylor and Susan Naylor (sometimes Naylor) his wife, their unknown heirs; Mary J. Naylor, whose marital status is unknown, her husband, Naylor (sometimes Naylor) whose real Christian name is unknown, and their unknown heirs; Phoebe Naylor, whose marital status is unknown, and Naylor, her husband, Christian name unknown and their unknown heirs; John W. Stull, marital status unknown and Stull, his wife, Christian name unknown, and their unknown heirs; and C. E. Brown, marital status unknown, his wife, Brown, real name unknown, and their unknown heirs.

Edward L. Prestel, one of the plaintiffs, claims in the petition that he has an equitable title to and is now in possession of part of the property by contract of purchase with Minnie Henne August 5, 1925.

The plaintiff, Walter Henne, the petition declares, is now owner of the legal title to certain parts of the real estate under a will admitted to Probate Court in Montgomery County May 8, 1928.

Minnie Henne died August 3, 1927 and the plaintiff, Walter Henne, is her widower. Plaintiffs assert that the defendants, Daniel C. and Ida Broadbeck may claim some interest in the property under a deed from John W. Stull, executor.

The remainder of the defendants, the petition avers, may claim an interest in the land by reason of prior ownerships and probable misdescriptions in deeds conveying real estate because of ownership of adjacent tracts of land.

Plaintiffs ask that the defendants be required to set up their interest and that their own titles be quieted. Henry H. Hollencamp is attorney for the plaintiffs.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE HER THRILL?

Chicago Chatter

BY IONE QUINBY

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

CHICAGO, June 4.—There is situated in the same building as the Chicago Civic Opera Company, a sandwich and fountain service, to which the operatic song birds flock during the opera season, after rehearsals. Almost any day, at a certain hour following a period of operatic arias and an ensemble singing, you will find such birds as Tito Schipa, Claudio Muzio, Margery Maxwell and Rosa Raisa, eating delicious sandwiches or ordering hot and cold drinks. One clerk, an obliging young man, who doesn't know an Italian verb from a Greek noun, has so won the admiration and respect of the singers that they continually bombard him with passes to the performances of "Carmen," "Il Trovatore," "Faust," and other well known operas. He is told that he may sit in a box if he wishes. However, he never goes. When an inquisitive person asked him why he does not take advantage of the passes, he said: "Why should I go and hear them sing? I can't half understand them when they ask me for sandwiches."

The younger generation in Chicago is taking advantage of a new convenience in hospitals, whereby they may leave their babies and go away for a week-end or night, secure in the belief that their progeny will be in expert hands. The baby is registered, a nurse takes it to a nursery, where it receives medical and "motherly" care, and it stays until its parents' brief holiday is ended. One couple with a three-months-old infant, desired to go to a house party in a town forty miles away, so they wrapped Tommy, Jr., up in a blanket, took him to the hospital, and left him. Sunday night—or Monday morning, rather, at 2:30 o'clock—they drove back to town with two other couples. The latter had just dropped the parents of the baby at their apartment door and were driving off, when the young father suddenly dashed after them, calling wildly: "Say, loan me a tanner, will you? I've got to get the baby out of 'hock'."

MARRIAGE LICENSES SET NEW COURT RECORD AS BRIDAL MONTH BEGINS

All existing records at the marriage license bureau in Probate Court are believed to have been broken with the issuance of six licenses Friday, June 1.

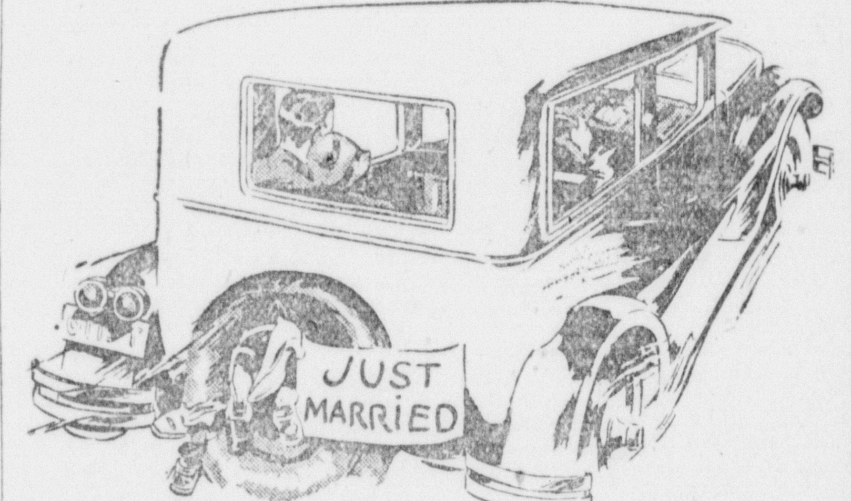

Ushering in the most popular bridal month of the year, attendants of the court say that six licenses represent the largest number granted in one day within their memory.

Two couples appeared in the morning and four more arrived simultaneously in the afternoon, bringing about considerable congestion for a time.

The following licenses have been granted in the last two days: Henry Hix Warner, Beaver Creek Twp., farmer, and Hazel Hawker, Beaver Creek Twp., Rev. D. A. Sellers.

Clifford Thomas Slattery, 1840 Rose Ave., Dayton, O., auto mechanic, and Martha Robert Routh, Beaver Creek Twp., R. R. No. 8, Dayton, O., Rev. Leaming. Alfred Andrew Neff, Alpha, teacher, and Ruth Whittington.

When You return to Your "Honeymoon Home"

WHEN you begin married life in your "Honeymoon Home," let the Maytag add to your happiness and comfort, and prolong the life of that dainty, beautiful linen found among your wedding gifts.

The Maytag washes by water action alone. It is hand careful with delicate clothes, yet so thorough that no hand-rubbing is necessary, even on the stubborn edge dirt of collars and cuffs—so rapid that an entire washing is done in an hour or so.

The quick-cleaning, self-emptying cast aluminum tub keeps the water hot for an entire washing, and it will not dent, chip, rust nor corrode. The adjustable legs make it just your height.

The new Maytag Roller Water Remover has a Safety Feed, automatic tension, self-reversing drainboard and instant safety release. The large, soft rolls remove both soap and water evenly from all parts of the garment without pressing hard-to-iron wrinkles into the clothes.

Sisters Are Married In Double Ceremony

The home of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Weller, Spring Valley was the scene of an interesting ceremony Saturday when their two daughters, Misses Margaret and Harriet Weller, were united in marriage to Mr. Lawrence Bailey, this city and Mr. Paulin Harper, near Cedarville.

Members of the immediate families of the contracting parties attended the ceremony. The vows were taken beneath an archway dividing the two living rooms. The doorway was covered with white, over which vines and rose buds were twined. Tall standards of roses were placed on either side.

Miss Margaret Weller and Mr. Bailey were married first, Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, officiating. Miss Weller wore a gown of delicate pink, fashioned with a tight bodice and full skirt, with a cape effect. She carried a shower of pink roses and sweet peas.

The Rev. Mr. Knoop, pastor of the Spring Valley Church, united Miss Harriet Weller and Mr. Harper. The second bride was attired entirely in white, her gown being fashioned with the bodice and full skirt. Both brides wore white satin slippers, and head bands of rhinestones. Miss Harriet Weller's bouquet was a shower of white roses.

Refreshments were served at quarter tables after the ceremonies and a huge wedding cake was cut by both brides. The tables were appointed in pink, white and green.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey left for Washington, D. C., and will spend three weeks touring the east. Mrs. Bailey is a graduate of Cedarville College and has been teaching in the Belmont schools. Mr. Bailey is secretary-treasurer of the Wilson Engineering and Contracting Co., this city, and is a graduate of Xenia Central High School and attended Antioch College and Miami-Jacobs Business College, Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper left by motor for a short wedding trip and on their return will reside on the Harper farm near Cedarville. Mrs. Harper is a graduate of Spring Valley High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will reside on W. Market St., this city.

Cute in a Baby-Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous
by Ruth Britain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish.

Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

SEE "BIG SISTER"

"Big Sister," THE GAZETTE'S brand-new serial-comic, begins in today's paper on the comic page.

The strip drawn by Leslie Forgrave is a new addition to the field of comic artistry and is different from others in that it contains quite as much pathos and human interest as it does comedy.

The new feature should have an appeal for the entire family and this paper anticipates a favorable reaction from its readers. If you have never been a comic page fan, begin with "Big Sister."

CHILDREN'S DAY OBSERVED SUNDAY

The U. B. Chapel was crowded Sunday morning for a "Children's Day" program under the auspices of the primary department. The program was well received.

A class of eleven was promoted from the primary to the junior department with a beautiful exercise, with each pupil receiving a testimonial as a reward of merit, and a certificate of promotion from the superintendent of the primary department, Mrs. A. J. Furstenberger and Mrs. George Luttrell, teacher.

A new class was organized among the young married people and others under the teaching of Mrs. Leona Wilson.

RULE AFFECTS HOME OFFICERS

COLUMBUS, O., June 4.—Holding that the positions are incompatible, Attorney General E. C. Turner today ruled that a member of the board of trustees of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, at Xenia, cannot be legally appointed by such board, as superintendent or acting superintendent of the Xenia Home.

The ruling was given to M. R. Limb, Wooster, O., president of the board.

Miss E. Jane Bailey, Wapakoneta, O., member of the board, and acting superintendent of the Home since the resignation of Col. T. E. Andrews, twelve weeks ago, said Monday she did not know of the Attorney General's ruling or of any request made by Mr. Limb for an opinion. Both Miss Bailey and Limb are Democratic members of the board.

MISSIONARY HEARD AT TABERNACLE HERE

A large and appreciative audience witnessed pictures presented at the Klan Tabernacle, E. Third St., Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Harry F. Zierer, pastor of Centerville M. E. Church, a former missionary to the Philippine Islands.

His subject, the change in the Philippine Islands under American control and of the public school and missionaries was educational. The Rev. Mr. Zierer will again on next Sunday afternoon, show a number of slides on "Missionary Travels and Experiences in the Philippines." The public is invited to the meeting at 2:30 p. m.

TWISTER WRECKS TRAIN; ONE DEAD

MONTREAL, June 4.—Saturday's miniature twister which flung a Canadian Pacific branch line train from its tracks near the village of Mystic was an "act of God." Gordon Mitchell decided at the request of Antoine Demers, who was killed when the moving train was overturned by the tornado. The tornado cut a path 200 yards wide across the course of the railway near Mystic, uprooting trees and overturning buildings.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875) he found a good deal of success in such cases with a preparation of his own containing simple laxative herbs with psyllium. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children, who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping or strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE. Adv.

TWISTER WRECKS TRAIN; ONE DEAD

MONTREAL, June 4.—Saturday's miniature twister which flung a Canadian Pacific branch line from its tracks near the village of Mystic was an "act of God," Coroner Mitchell decided at the request of Antoine Demers, who was killed when the moving train was overturned by the tornado. The tornado cut a path 200 yards wide across the course of the railway near Mystic, uprooting trees and overturning buildings.

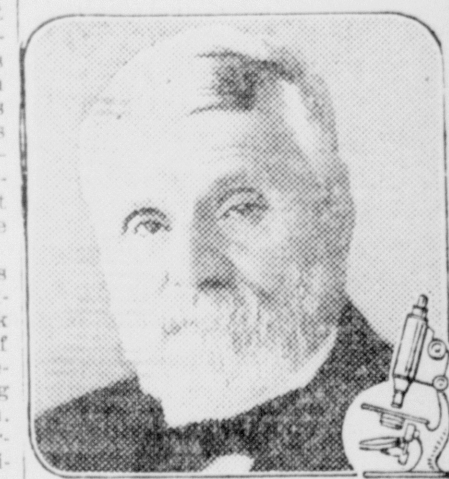

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875. He found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with peppermint. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

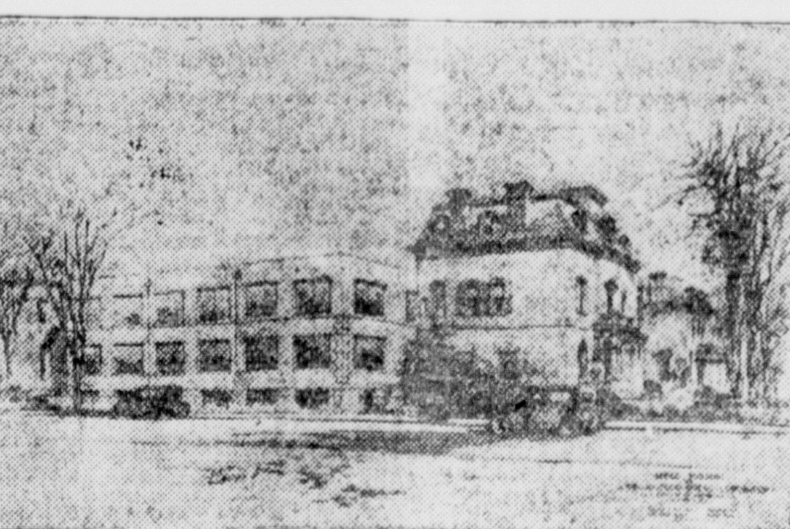

J. C. Caldwell, M.D.
AT AGE 83

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping or strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE. Adv.

BUREAU TO DEDICATE NEW HOME

June 12 has been set aside by Farm Bureau leaders and members of Ohio as Farm Bureau Day. At that time they will dedicate the new Farm Bureau buildings, headquarters for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and its affiliated groups, to the service of Ohio agriculture. The new headquarters is located on the edge of the business district of Columbus, facing East Broad Street at Jefferson Avenue.

It is owned by the Ohio Farm Bureau Corporation, a subsidiary unit of the state farm bureau organization. A modern addition to a remodeled brick dwelling house makes 20,000 square feet of office space available for the farm bureau federation, the corporation, the Ohio Farm Bureau Service Company, the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, the Ohio Livestock Cooperative Association and the service units of these groups.

M'CURRAN BROTHERS SUBMIT LOW BID FOR HOME BUILDINGS

Low bid for the construction of the new hospital and two cottages at the O. S. and S. O. Home was submitted by M'Currans Brothers, this city, when bids were opened by the board of trustees Saturday noon.

The bid of the Xenia contracting firm was $109,000 for the general contract. Nine contractors submitted figures for the general contract. There were also a number of bids for sub-contracts, including plumbing and electric wiring.

Herbert R. Briggs, Columbus, state architect, and Ralph Hersh, Home architect, Columbus, also met with the trustees.

The board did not award the contract Saturday and will not take action on the bids until the figures are gone over completely.

M'Currans Brothers, however, are expected to receive the general contract and may sublet part of the work.

An appropriation of $100,000 for the proposed new hospital has been made by the state legislature, which also authorized that $75,000 be set aside for erection of two new cottages.

MERCHANTS TO HEAR SPRINGFIELD MAN

Discussing the subject, "Municipal Plants," B. A. Houser, Springfield, O., field engineer of the Hoppers Water Wheel Co., will be the principal speaker at the meeting of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the organization's club room on W. Main St.

Mr. Houser's talk will concern the installation, cost and operation of various kinds of municipally-owned plants.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine. Adv.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE HOPE OF A CHRISTIAN—Hope deferred maketh the heart sick; but when the desire cometh, it is a tree of life.—Prov. 13:12.

THE BEST BOOKS

A book has just been published entitled "The Best Books of Our Time," by Asa Don Dickinson, librarian of the University of Pennsylvania. This book lists a thousand books that were published during the last quarter century. It lists no book except upon endorsement of four or more persons or organs that are considered authoritative. So we have here the thousand books for English-reading people that have gained approval of critics.

Here are the ten favorite authors of our day, according to Mr. Dickinson's tabulation of critical endorsements: John Galsworthy, H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett, George Bernard Shaw, Edith Wharton, Joseph Conrad, Booth Tarkington, Rudyard Kipling, W. H. Hudson and Joseph Hergesheimer.

Of course, Mr. Dickinson's popularity test is of a different sort from that usually used. The critics whose endorsements he accepts are nearly all intelligent critics. If the test were number of copies sold, Harold Bell Wright, very likely, would outshine the ten whose names have just been mentioned, and Zane Grey would come near the top of the list. Mr. Dickinson's tabulation comes much nearer giving you a fair estimate of the really good books.

Theodore Dreiser, who, in the opinion of some, writes the worst English that is to be found between cloth covers, appears twenty-fifth on the list of critics' favorites. Knut Hamsun, who wrote "Growth of the Soil," one of the best novels ever written in any language, is credited with 26 endorsements, and Dreiser with 49. So you see there is plenty of fault to be found with this listing of the best books and the best authors. But for all that, it is a brave effort, conscientiously carried out.

Now if any presidential candidate ever hooked apples or played truant as a boy, he might as well get ready to have that damning fact held up to the execration of mankind.

Experience is a fairly good teacher, but her pupils usually need a post graduate course.

The Way of the World

A CALLING

It has been said that preaching is a poor business, but a great calling. A business has to do with earning a living. A calling has to do with living a life. That is true with professions other than the ministry. There is much tendency these days toward vocational schools in order that young people may more quickly be provided with the capacity for earning a living. Let's not forget preparation for living a life.

COST OF NEGLIGENCE

Small things we give little attention to cost us millions. Black smoke, it is estimated, costs the city of St. Louis $15,000,000 a year. The price in soiled clothing, curtains, windows and painting alone amounts to huge figures. And yet scientific means can be had for the abolition of most of the smoke.

We permit ourselves to be imposed on by our own spirit of negligence and our lack of attention.

HOPEFUL

Radio will eliminate jazz music and become "the greatest force for refining the emotions of the world." So says the hopeful Mr. Damrosch, veteran orchestra conductor of New York. He says radio is coming out of its trance and more worthwhile music is being put on the air. And Mr. Damrosch is right when he says that jazz is as bad over the radio as anywhere else—perhaps worse.

JAZZ

Speaking of the so-called music known as jazz, it has been well defined as a monotony of rhythm without music and without soul. If anybody has a better definition the writer for the Way of the World will be glad to print it.

SEVERE

In a California town the chief of police has begun the practice of taking finger prints of automobile speeders who cannot furnish operators' or chauffeurs' licenses. That's drastic but it is probably time that folks who break one law be made to realize that they, too, are criminals, like folks who break some other law.

BOOKS AND ISLANDS

A reader of this column writes: "I was very much interested in your article on ten books for a desert island sojourn, and give below my choice of ten books:

- Bible
- Shakespeare
- Miss Austin's Persuasion
- Pride and Prejudice
- Mansfield Park
- Shelley's Poems
- Macaulay's Essays
- Emerson's Society and Solitude
- Boswell's Johnson
- Mme. de Sevigne's letters in English."

NO FAD

About 30 years ago when "horseless carriages" first began to be seen on the road there were plenty of folks to stand on the curb and say "it can't last, it's only a fad." They are the ones who always lose out in the big advancements of life because they lack imagination. But we are slow to learn and there are those today who put the airplane in the fad class.

Now comes the sales manager of an airplane firm and tells the world that airplane production in the United States has increased four times in the past year.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, June 4.—Fog is no worse than it ever was in the north of New York, but the liners are bigger and less manageable and traffic is greater, so ship operators are trying to figure out a way to prevent the costly delays of craft in the harbor by fog. The other day 14 steamships were held up for hours, 19 got into collision, and $3,000,000 loss was suffered by the companies in damages and charges due to delays.

One suggested solution is the construction of piers for transatlantic liners at the end of Long Island, with railroad trains and airplanes taking care of the transfer of passengers, mail and cargo to Manhattan Isle. Fog would affect conditions there, too, but the liners would be saved from navigating the difficult New York harbor.

New York is the greatest port in the world, but it is one of the least popular with skippers.

If you think that saleswomen are necessary in the successful sale of women's clothes to women, you're wrong. In New York, youngish salesmen, handsome and snappy, with a good personal line as well as the one they're selling, get the biggest results in dealing with women buyers from out-of-town stores, and the same holds true in many of the Fifth Avenue retail shops which cater to puffy women from Park avenue.

Some of these sleekish salesmen are able to build up a large "following," and to take them from one concern to another.

And wholesale houses that make a practice of providing pretty companions for male buyers from Kewance and Winchester, also endeavor to provide lady buyers with personable gigolos. Business is business!

Speaking of buyers, department stores in London and New York have a system of exchanging members of their staffs, which enables buyers or executives to go to Europe or America as the case may be, for rest, travel and new merchandising ideas. The exchanges are made just as universities here and abroad trade professors.

Nothing ever takes the place of a pay envelope in a trouper's life. Eddie Cantor is one of the richest men on the stage, and well able to retire, but he admits that whenever he is out of a show, he walks instead of hiring taxis, and buys cheaper cigars and smokes them longer.

George Britt says, "It's curious how strange sights are overlooked in New York," and tells me the story of a friend who drank more than he should and awoke in the morning lying in a vacant lot in the Bronx, with his pocket empty and his shoes gone. He begged subway fare downtown, rode to his office and got enough money to buy new shoes. Instead of being humiliated by the experience, he said: "Few persons notice whether a man is wearing shoes or not."

How Your Dog's Mind Works

A man may learn much about himself by studying his dog. Indeed, psychologists have made painstaking studies of dogs behavior for the very purpose of learning more about those of us who chance to be human. Little puppies and babies come into the world not knowing much, but having certain natural instincts. We usually show more intelligence toward a little dog growing up in the household than toward a baby, and consequently the dog is soon the more obedient. There are fewer spoiled children. The two learn in about the same way—each adding to inherited instincts what he picks up from day to day by actual experience.

We recognize that a dog begins to form habits almost from the day of its birth, but we make the mistake of having less heed the habit-forming tendencies of babies. It doesn't take long for a baby to discover that if it makes a noise loud enough and long enough, somebody will pick it up and feed it or amuse it. But let the pup howl in the woodshed and it finds out that its racket will avail it nothing, unless a scolding or worse. Likewise it learns that it must observe decorum in the house or suffer penalties. By associating causes and effects it begins to conform to certain social requirements and becomes an agreeable companion.

If we only studied our dogs enough to realize how important is this tendency of every young animal to learn by association we might do a better job in training our children, and might better understand why we who are grown behave as we do.

I know a man who never lets a servant or anybody else feed his dog, but always does it himself, because he sees that the dog grows fond of those who feed him and the owner wants this pleasant association in the dog's naturally tickles his vanity.

So have his dog decidedly a so-called one-man dog. But this same man never takes the trouble to play games with his children, read aloud to them, or go fishing with them. And he wonders why he is unable to be "close" to them. The association he has built up in their minds is chiefly that he represents authority, that they'd better be "good" when he comes around, rather than that when he comes home the fun begins.

Here are E's questions and answers:

1. "Can you give the name of a reliable hair dye? What is your opinion in regard to the use of hair dyes?"

Answer: No, E. I cannot give you names of hair dyes. My opinion in regard to their use, except in cases where gray hair is a detriment to obtaining a position, is that they should not be used. You cannot know if they contain harmful ingredients or not. Gray hair is not necessarily a sign of age, and oftentimes it is a great beautifier, softening the expression and lines.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Dressing the Foot for Beauty

The world is continually changing, and to our honor be it said, the change is usually for the better. Nowhere has this been more plainly evidenced than in our clothes. From heavy, hampering unbecoming styles, we have graduated to the simplest fabrics and the simplest lines, lines of grace, ease and freedom. The foot too, has come in for its ample quota of emancipation. Uncomfortable shoes, and by the same standard, uncomfortable, correct orthopedic shoe is not distinguishable any more, chiefly through its ugliness, as it used to be, as many orthopedic shoes are now quite smart.

The pointed toe has gone out and with it hundreds of thousands of corns! Today's vogue in footgear calls for slim lines and long lines—lines of foot comfort they are.

Shoes, instead of taking the weird caricature shapes of a long forgotten fashion, follow exactly the outline of the foot. Short ramps and long ramps were both modified to the natural. Both exaggerated points and bulldog toes have gone into the annals of the past.

There are probably thousands of foot styles to choose from, and the best I can do to guide your choice in footgear is to generalize on the types which may be classified as large.

The long slender foot is the foot of the aristocrat. This does not mean that an E foot will look well in an A shoe. Quite to the contrary. Bulging feet are dreadful.

Dark shoes are more flattering to the feet than light ones. Strap pumps are more graceful than oxfords.

Answers to Correspondents

E. writing on March 2, asks me four questions and she ends up as follows: "I realize you have many letters to answer, and I will wait until June 1. If you have the answers appear in our paper the first week of June this will give you plenty of time and I will be watching for same." Faith deserves reward, I wish all of you would realize it may take three or four months before your answer can appear, and it cannot appear at all if it isn't of general interest. And even though it is of general interest, if I have recently answered a similar question, I have to omit it this time. I have enough letters in one mail to furnish material for the column for a year, really, so that you can see how impossible it is for all of you to be answered.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Sometime ago one of our readers asked us for a whole menu to be cooked in a steam cooker. The meat and potatoes for the noon dinner in the following day's menu may be steamed. The dandelion salad uses the leaves of the greens raw. Wash them well, of course.

- Breakfast: Fresh Strawberries, Unhulled Poached Eggs, Buttered Toast, Coffee
- Dinner: Steamed Cured Ham, Mashed Potatoes, Crisp Dandelion Salad, Rabbits, Young Onions, Grapefruit Gelatin, Milk
- Supper: Buttered Green Beans, Lettuce Salad, Whole Wheat Bread and Butter, Strawberry Tarts, Tea

Today's Recipes

Steamed Ham—Cut ham in slices for individual servings. Put in a steam cooker and let steam for 30 minutes. Just before serving put in the oven and finish by slightly roasting it. Ham cooked in this way is tender and has a fine flavor.

Grapefruit Gelatin—Pour one and one-half cups boiling water over the contents of one package of gelatin and stir until dissolved. Put away to cool. Peel one grapefruit and divide the sections. Remove the white, tough lining and cut in small pieces. Add three-fourths cup of sugar as the juice will dissolve it. Add this mixture to the gelatin just before it starts to harden. Let stand in the refrigerator several hours before serving.

Strawberry Tarts—Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff. Then fold in one cup sugar, one teaspoon vinegar and one teaspoon vanilla. Drop them by spoonfuls on an ungreased baking sheet. Serve with strawberries and whipped cream. They must be baked in a slow oven one hour.

Decaffeinated Coffee

W.—Yes, decaffeinated coffee is considered harmless. There are several brands.

A moderate amount of any kind of coffee is harmless to the majority. However, there are a few who seem to be susceptible to the caffeine which stimulates them and causes insomnia and perhaps other unpleasant symptoms, and for those the decaffeinated coffee is undoubtedly better.

Statesman Assails Strife In Politics

By CHARLES EVANS HUGHES

Former U. S. Secretary of State America needs a "scientific idealism" in political organization; that is, scientific idealism as a desire for the truth in political organization and government, a willingness to find a method of political action and a readiness to acquiesce in its results.

It is difficult to organize the intelligence of the country in politics, though it is not difficult to do so in business, and some day we shall be able to organize the intelligence of the country in politics, so that when government touches business it will do so for the benefit of the country.

But, in spite of all the difficulties in finding open avenue to the truth, I believe that the spirit which animates the average American is wholesome, and in spite of the recent revelations business has never before been so wholesome, and the relations between capital and labor have never been so good, and we are entitled to look forward to a very satisfactory future.

we have a maximum of political stability. In fact some persons believe that our government is the most successful contrivance ever devised to prevent things from being done. However, sometimes the public is well off because it is not easy to do many things.

Noted Writer Advises Against Early Marriage

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

American Author

As a general rule, youths are too much carried away with the glamour of love, and with them marriage is not a question of intelligence.

Most people haven't developed intelligence enough to marry before they are 40.

Falling in love is too haphazard. Young folks don't take it seriously to heart. The world, I suppose, would be a great deal better if people put off marriage until their intelligence had developed to the extent that they realized the contract they were making but they won't do it.

By that I don't mean that some young folks don't fall sincerely in love. But, for the most part, love is a lottery, and it depends entirely upon the young folk's character whether they remain in love.

Love is a funny thing. It is a blindness that obscures the defects and illuminates the charming points. A young man sees his beloved only in that glamour, but the glow, the halo that the lover puts about the head of his beloved fades as he grows older, and he sees her as she really is.

Of course, she may still be as beautiful to him as she was in the earlier days of their youth, but he has developed his intelligence and he also takes account of some of her defects, if she has any.

Today economic conditions are much against a youth marrying. It is much more expensive to support a wife at the marriageable age nowadays and because of this most young men are not in a financial position to marry until they are 28 or 30.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

LIVING AND LOVING

Hero Worship

Do you remember, you middle-aged women, when you were in your teens and another woman a few years—or maybe many years—older was your ideal of all that was beautiful? And then maybe the one you worshipped proved unworthy, and your heart was broken, your faith in human nature lost. You felt old at 15 or 16. The following letter will make you realize those days.

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl, and shall be 17 within a month. However my problem does not concern the opposite sex. In studying psychology I read that adolescent girls find ideals in older women and love these women with a love similar to that of a sister in later years. Well, I have fallen into that.

"I love my friend dearly, I love her so that I would do anything in this world for her. She is always saying that she loves me better than anything on earth, and really treated me so for a while, but now she has decided me. I found that things she told me she didn't mean, and she has acted contrary to her word.

"She calls herself my 'other mother,' but I can't conceive of a mother acting like she does. When I get at her all she says is 'Mother's baby is just jealous.' Then she'll hug and kiss me and will make up for the day, and she'll go and do the same thing again.

"Now, Mrs. Lee, this time I've sworn not to return to her, and if she doesn't call I'll know she's not true. Won't you advise me as to my actions toward her?"

"Lady Butterfly."

I don't want to dispute your psychology book, dear, but I do not think these infatuations of young girls for older women are quite like those of suitors in later years—not usually. But they are very intense, nevertheless, and it is very painful when the girl begins to doubt the adored one. And it is a little hard on the older woman, too, because her actions must be perfect in every way or her admirer is hurt. You say you would do anything in the world for this friend. Except to treat her like a human being, and let her have a few faults. Is that it?

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

On Guard in the Grove

Perhaps Mrs. Bobolink was a bit worried as to what Peter might be thinking, for now that lady-bird made a strange remark.

"Don't think for a moment that many birds play mean tricks on the humans," Bob said she.

"Of course, some birds are afraid of humans. Others live in the wilds and don't know their habits. But lots of us love them. Why, I know a bird that is so fond of the Two-Legs that he is never happy unless he is acting as a watch dog and guarding their property."

"Really?" exclaimed Peter. "Why, I never heard that! What is the bird's name? Do you suppose I have ever seen him?"

"I am sure you have not, for watch dog bird lives not far away from where Pedro Plant-Cutter makes his home," declared Mr. Bobolink, taking up the story before Mrs. Bobolink could answer Peter's question. "One afternoon wife and I had been flying lazily about trying to find a cool place. My! how hot it was. We kept our beaks wide open, hoping to catch a breath, but not one was stirring. 'At last, when we were wishing for night to come, in the distance we spied a grove of palm trees and beneath them we could see tall grasses and the most beautiful of flowers. You may well believe we lost no time in getting to the spot.

"We flew in hoping to find a cool spot in the grasses. We were so very warm. Surely we can do no harm," twittered Mrs. Bobolink.

"Do let us stay for a while, kind sir," pleaded I knowing that wife was so tired that she would be ill if she did not rest and cool off.

"The fierce fellow continued to glare at us. Would he drive us out of the grove? We watched him anxiously."

Next—"Meet Mex?"

MRS. BOBOLINK WAS A BIT WORRIED AS TO WHAT PETER MIGHT BE THINKING.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE HOPE OF A CHRISTIAN—Hope deferred maketh the heart sick; but when the desire cometh, it is a tree of life.—Prov. 13:12.

THE BEST BOOKS

A book has just been published entitled "The Best Books of Our Time," by Asa Don Dickinson, librarian of the University of Pennsylvania. This book lists a thousand books that were published during the last quarter century. It lists no book except upon endorsement of four or more persons or organs that are considered authoritative. So we have here the thousand books for English-reading people that have gained approval of critics.

Here are the ten favorite authors of our day, according to Mr. Dickinson's tabulation of critical endorsements: John Galsworthy, H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett, George Bernard Shaw, Edith Wharton, Joseph Conrad, Booth Tarkington, Rudyard Kipling, W. H. Hudson and Joseph Hergesheimer.

Of course, Mr. Dickinson's popularity test is of a different sort from that usually used. The critics whose endorsements he accepts are nearly all intelligent critics. If the test were number of copies sold, Harold Bell Wright, very likely, would outshine the ten whose names have just been mentioned, and Zane Grey would come near the top of the list. Mr. Dickinson's tabulation comes much nearer giving you a fair estimate of the really good books.

Theodore Dreiser, who, in the opinion of some, writes the worst English that is to be found between cloth covers, appears twenty-fifth on the list of critics' favorites. Knut Hamsun, who wrote "Growth of the Soil," one of the best novels ever written in any language, is credited with 26 endorsements, and Dreiser with 49. So you see there is plenty of fault to be found with this listing of the best books and the best authors. But for all that, it is a brave effort, conscientiously carried out.

Now if any presidential candidate ever hooked apples or played truant as a boy, he might as well get ready to have that damning fact held up to the execration of mankind.

Experience is a fairly good teacher, but her pupils usually need a post graduate course.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

A CALLING

It has been said that preaching is a poor business, but a great calling. A business has to do with earning a living. A calling has to do with living a life. That is true with professions other than the ministry. There is much tendency these days toward vocational schools in order that young people may more quickly be provided with the capacity for earning a living. Let's not forget preparation for living a life.

COST OF NEGLIGENCE

Small things we give little attention to cost us millions. Black smoke, it is estimated, costs the city of St. Louis $15,000,000 a year. The price in soiled clothing, curtains, windows and painting alone amounts to huge figures. And yet scientific means can be had for the abolition of most of the smoke.

We permit ourselves to be imposed on by our own spirit of negligence and our lack of attention.

HOPEFUL

Radio will eliminate jazz music and become "the greatest force for refining the emotions of the world." So says the hopeful Mr. Damrosch, veteran orchestra conductor of New York. He says radio is coming out of its trance and more worthwhile music is being put on the air. And Mr. Damrosch is right when he says that jazz is as bad over the radio as anywhere else—perhaps worse.

JAZZ

Speaking of the so-called music known as jazz, it has been well defined as a monotony of rhythm without music and without soul. If anybody has a better definition the writer for the Way of the World will be glad to print it.

SEVERE

In a California town the chief of police has begun the practice of taking finger prints of automobile speeders who cannot furnish operators' or chauffeurs' licenses. That's drastic but it is probably time that folks who break one law be made to realize that they, too, are criminals, like folks who break some other law.

BOOKS AND ISLANDS

A reader of this column writes: "I was very much interested in your article on ten books for a desert isle sojourn, and give below my choice of ten books:

- Bible
- Shakespeare
- Miss Austin's Persuasion
- Pride and Prejudice
- Mansfield Park
- Shelley's Poems
- Macaulay's Essays
- Emerson's Society and Solitude
- Boswell's Johnson
- Mme. de Sevigne's letters in English.

NO FAD

About 30 years ago when "horseless carriages" first began to be seen on the road there were plenty of folks to stand on the curb and say "it can't last, it's only a fad." They are the ones who always lose out in the big advancements of life because they lack imagination. But we are slow to learn and there are those today who put the airplane in the fad class.

Now comes the sales manager of an airplane firm and tells the world that airplane production in the United States has increased four times in the past year.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, June 4.—Fog is no worse than it ever was in the port of New York, but the liners are bigger and less manageable and traffic is greater, so ship operators are trying to figure out a way to prevent the costly delays of craft in the harbor by fog. The other day 14 steamships were held up for hours. 19 got into collisions, and $3,000,000 loss was suffered by the companies in damages and charges due to delays.

One suggested solution is the construction of piers for transatlantic liners at the end of Long Island, with railroad trains and airplanes taking care of the transfer of passengers, mail and cargo to Manhattan Isle. Fog would affect conditions there, too, but the liners would be saved from navigating the difficult New York harbor.

New York is the greatest port in the world, but it is one of the least popular with skippers.

If you think that saleswomen are necessary in the successful sale of women's clothes to women, you're wrong. In New York, youngish salesmen, handsome and snappy, with a good personal line as well as the one they're selling, get the biggest results in dealing with women buyers from out-of-town stores; and the same holds true in many of the Fifth Avenue retail shops which cater to puffy women from Park avenue.

Some of these shikish salesmen are able to build up a large "following," and to take them from one concern to another. And wholesale houses that make a practice of providing pretty companions for male buyers from Keweenaw and Winchester, also endeavor to provide lady buyers with personable gigolos. Business is business!

Speaking of buyers, department stores in London and New York have a system of exchanging members of their staffs, which enables buyers or executives to go to Europe or America in the case may be, for rest, travel and new merchandising ideas. The exchanges are made just as universities here and abroad trade professors.

Nothing ever takes the place of a hairy envelope in a trouper's life. Eddie Cantor is one of the richest men on the stage, and well able to retire, but he admits that whenever he is out of a show, he walks instead of hiring taxis, and buys cheaper cigars and smokes them longer.

George Britt says, "It's curious how strange sights are overlooked in New York," and tells me the story of a friend who drank more than he should and awoke in the morning lying in a vacant lot in the Bronx, with his pocket empty and his shoes gone. He begged subway fare downtown, rode to his office and got enough money to buy new shoes. Instead of being humiliated by the experience, he said: "Few persons notice whether a man is wearing shoes or not."

How Your Dog's Mind Works

A man may learn much about himself by studying his dog. Indeed, psychologists have made painstaking studies of dogs behavior for the very purpose of learning more about those of us who claim to be human. Little puppies and babies come into the world not knowing much, but having certain natural instincts. We usually show more intelligence toward a little dog growing up in the household than toward a baby, and consequently the dog is soon the more obedient. There are fewer spoiled dogs than spoiled children. The two learn in about the same way—each adding to inherited instincts what he picks up from day to day by actual experience.

We recognize that a dog begins to form habits almost from the day of its birth, but we make the mistake of paying less heed to the habit-forming tendencies of babies. It doesn't take long for a baby to discover that if it makes a noise loud enough and long enough, somebody will pick it up and feed it or amuse it. But let the pup howl in the woodshed and it finds out that its racket will avail it nothing, unless a scolding or worse. Likewise it learns that it must observe decorum in the house or suffer penalties. By associating causes and effects it begins to conform to certain social requirements and becomes an agreeable companion.

If we only studied our dogs enough to realize how important is this tendency of every young animal to learn by association we might do a better job in training our children, and might better understand why we who are grown behave as we do.

I know a man who never lets his dog, but always does it himself, because he sees that the dog grows fond of those who feed him and the owner wants this pleasant association in the dog's naturally tickles his vanity to have his dog decidedly a so-called one-man dog. But this same man never takes the trouble to read aloud to them, or go fishing with them. And he wonders why he is unable to be "close" to them. The association he has built up in their minds is chiefly that he represents authority, that they'd better be "good" when he comes around, rather than that when he comes home the fun begins.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Dressing the Foot for Beauty

The world is continually changing, and to our honor be it said, the change is usually for the better. Nowhere has this been more plainly evidenced than in our clothes. From heavy, hampering, unbecoming styles, we have graduated to the simplest fabrics and the simplest lines, of grace and ease and freedom.

The foot too, has come in for its ample quota of emancipation. Uncomfortable shoes, and by the same standard a comfortable, correct, orthopedic shoe is no distinguishable any more, chiefly through its usefulness, as it is used to be, as many orthopedic shoes are now quite smart.

The pointed toe has gone out and with it hundreds of thousands of corns! Today's vogue in footwear calls for slim lines and long lines—lines of foot comfort they are.

Shoes, instead of taking the weird caricature shapes of a long forgotten fashion, follow exactly the outline of the foot. Short vamps and long vamps were both modified to the natural. Both exaggerated points and bulldog toes have gone into the annals of the past.

There are probably thousands of foot styles to choose from, and the best I can do to guide your choice in footwear is to generalize on the types which may be classified as large.

The long slender foot is the foot of the aristocrat. This does not mean that an E foot will look well in an A shoe. Quite to the contrary. Bulging feet are dreadful.

Dark shoes are more flattering to the feet than light ones. Strap pumps are more graceful than oxfords.

Answers to Correspondents

E. writing on March 2, asks me four questions and she ends up as follows: "I realize you have many letters to answer, and I will wait until June 1. If you have the answers appear in our paper the first week of June this will give you plenty of time and I will be watching for same." I wish all of you would realize it may take three or four months before your answer can appear, and it cannot appear at all if it isn't of general interest. And even though it is of general interest, if I have recently answered a similar question, I have to omit it this time. I have enough letters in one mail to furnish material for the column for a year, really, so that you can see how impossible it is for all of you to be answered.

Here are E's questions and answers:

1. Can you give the name of a reliable hair dye? What is your opinion in regard to the use of hair dyes?

Answer: No, E, I cannot give you names of hair dyes. My opinion in regard to their use, except in cases where gray hair is a detriment to obtaining a position, is that they should not be used. You cannot know if they contain harmful ingredients or not. Gray hair is not necessarily a sign of age, and oftentimes it is a great beautifier, softening the expression and lines.

2. Will you name a good doctor book?

Answer: We have a list of books on tuberculosis, a list on general dietetics, a list on diabetes, a list on children, any one of which you may secure by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin to help cover cost of printing and handling.

3. How can I prevent falling of the hair during pregnancy?

Answer: Proper pre-natal care as a diet, exercise, rest, etc., coupled with the proper care of the scalp, will do this. We have an article on the diet during nursing and pregnancy and another on the care of the hair which you may secure by following the rules above.

4. Can a mother determine disposition, life work, etc., of a baby before birth—that is, educate the baby through the power of thought during pregnancy?

Answer: No, E, no more than she can mark the baby by scars. The only way that the baby would be for the mother to educate herself during that period along certain lines and continue that education and so mold the disposition and inclinations of the child. The real character of its brain cells in the line of its talents, etc., are determined in the germ plasma in the germ plasma are the result of the entire mental and physical life of the parents and their ancestors.

MENU HINT

Sometimes ago one of our readers asked us for a whole menu to be cooked in a steam cooker. The meat and potatoes for the noon dinner in the following day's menu may be steamed. The dandelion salad uses the leaves of the greens raw. Wash them well, of course.

Breakfast

Fresh Strawberries, Unhulled
Poached Eggs Buttered Toast
Coffee

Dinner

Steamed Cured Ham
Mashed Potatoes
Crisp Dandelion Salad
Rabishes Young Onions
Grapefruit Gelatin
Milk

Supper

Buttered Green Beans Lettuce
Salad
Whole Wheat Bread and Butter
Strawberry Tarts
Milk Tea

Today's Recipes

Steamed Ham—Cut ham in slices for individual servings. Put in a steam cooker and let steam for 30 minutes. Just before serving put in the oven and finish by slightly roasting it. Ham cooked in this way is tender and has a fine flavor.

Grapefruit Gelatin—Pour one and one-half cups boiling water over the contents of one package of gelatin and stir until dissolved. Put away to cool. Peel one grapefruit and divide the sections. Remove the white, tough lining and cut in small pieces. Add three-fourths cup of sugar, as the juice will dissolve it. Add this mixture to the gelatin just before it starts to harden. Let stand in the refrigerator several hours before serving.

Strawberry Tarts—Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff. Then fold in one cup sugar, one teaspoon vinegar and one teaspoon vanilla. Drop them by spoonfuls on an ungreased baking sheet. Serve with strawberries and whipped cream. They must be baked in a slow oven one hour.

Decaffeinated Coffee—W. Yes, decaffeinated coffee is considered harmless. There are several brands. A moderate amount of any kind of coffee is harmless to the majority. However, there are a few who seem to be susceptible to the caffeine which stimulates them and causes insomnia and perhaps other unpleasant symptoms, and for those the decaffeinated coffee is undoubtedly better.

Germany, France and England are increasing their production of motion pictures. War conditions of China have cut the cotton goods output in Shanghai to less than two-thirds of capacity.

Statesman Assails Strife In Politics

By CHARLES EVANS HUGHES

Former U. S. Secretary of State America needs a "scientific idealism" in political organization, that is, scientific idealism as a desire for the truth in political organization and government, a willingness to find a method of political action and a readiness to acquiesce in its results.

I love to think of a future in which more and more of this spirit becomes acceptable. I think we have here a most extraordinary opportunity for this because of the high degree of intelligence our people possess, although, lamentably, so little of it is shown sometimes in the administration of our affairs.

At present this country is in the midst of apparent political strife and it should get along with less internal strife.

But the progress of the universe is from chaos into cosmos, and therefore we will finally achieve political stability. In this country

we have a maximum of political stability. In fact some persons believe that our government is the most successful contrivance ever devised to prevent things from being done. However, sometimes the public is well off because it is not easy to do many things.

It is difficult to organize the intelligence of the country in politics, though it is not difficult to do so in business and some day we shall be able to organize the intelligence of the country in politics, so that when government touches business it will do so for the benefit of the country.

But, in spite of all the difficulties in finding open avenue to the truth, I believe that the spirit which animates the average American is wholesome, and in spite of the recent revelations business has never before been so wholesome, and the relations between capital and labor have never been so good, and we are entitled to look forward to a very satisfactory future.

Noted Writer Advises Against Early Marriage

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

American Author As a general rule, youths are too much carried away with the glamour of love, and with them marriage is not a question of intelligence.

Most people haven't developed intelligence enough to marry before they are 40.

Falling in love is too haphazard. Young folks don't take it seriously to heart. The world, I suppose, would be a great deal better if people put off marriage until their intelligence had developed to the extent that they realized the contract they were making but they won't do it.

By that I don't mean that some young folks don't fall sincerely in love. But, for the most part, love is a lottery, and it depends entirely upon the young folk's characters whether they remain in love.

Love is a funny thing. It is a blindness that obscures the defects and illuminates the charming points. A young man sees his beloved only in that glamour, but the glow that the glow of his beloved fades as he grows older, and he sees her as she really is.

Of course, she may still be as beautiful to him as she was in the earlier days of their youth, but he has developed his intelligence and he has taken account of some of her defects, if she has any.

Today economic conditions are much against a youth marrying. It is much more expensive to support a wife at the marriageable age nowadays and because of this the most young men are not in a financial position to marry until they are 28 or 30.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

LIVING AND LOVING

Do you remember, you middle-aged women, when you were in your teens and another woman a few years—or maybe many years—older was your ideal of all that was beautiful? And then maybe the one you worshipped proved unworthy, and your heart was broken, your faith in human nature lost. You felt old at 15 or 16. The following letter will make you realize those days.

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl, and shall be 17 within a month. However my problem does not concern the opposite sex. In studying psychology I read that adolescent girls find ideals in older women and love these women with a love similar to that of a suitor in later years. Well, I have fallen into that."

"I love my friend dearly, I love her so that I would do anything in this world for her. She is always saying that she loves me better than anything on earth, and really treated me so for a while, but now she has decided me. I found that things she told me she didn't mean, and she has acted contrary to her word."

"She calls herself my 'other mother,' but I can't conceive of a mother acting like she does. When I get at her all she says is 'Mother's baby is just jealous.' Then she'll hug and kiss me and will make up for the day, and she'll go and do the same thing again."

"Now, Mrs. Lee, this time I've sworn not to return to her, and if she doesn't call 'I'll know she's not true. Won't you advise me as to my actions toward her?'"

"Lady Butterfly," I don't want to dispute your psychology book, dear, but I do not think these infatuations of young girls for older women are quite like those of suitors in later years—not usually. But they are very intense, nevertheless, and it is very painful when the girl begins to doubt the adored one. And it is a little hard on the older woman, too, because her actions must be perfect in every way or her admirer is hurt. You say you would do anything in the world for this friend. Except to treat her like a human being, and let her have a few faults. Is that it?

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

On Guard in the Grove Perhaps Mrs. Bobolink was a bit worried as to what Peter might be thinking, for now that lady-bird made a strange remark.

"Don't think for a moment that many birds play mean tricks on the humans," Bobolink said she. "Hardly any of them do."

"Of course, some birds are afraid of humans. Others live in the wilds and don't know their habits. But lots of us love them. Why, I know a bird that is so fond of the Two-Legs that he is never happy unless he is acting as a watch dog and guarding their property."

"Really?" exclaimed Peter. "Why, I never heard that! What is the bird's name? Do you suppose I have ever seen him?"

"I am sure you have not, for watch dog bird lives not far away from where Pedro Plant-Cutter makes his home," declared Mrs. Bobolink, taking up the story before Mrs. Bobolink could answer Peter's question. "One afternoon wife and I had been flying lazily about trying to find a cool place. My how hot it was. We kept our beaks wide open, hoping to catch a breath, but not one was stirring."

"At last, when we were wishing for night to come, in the distance we spied a grove of palm trees and beneath them we could see tall grasses and the most beautiful of flowers. You may well believe we lost no time in getting to the spot."

"From afar off one would never have guessed that this was a home of humans, but it was."

"As we drew near we could see the house among the trees. There were people on the porch and they, too, must have felt the heat, for they were waving feathered sticks in front of their faces. Scarcely had we and I entered the grove when a huge creature came running toward us."

"Never had we seen anything like it before. The creature had a body as large as a hen's long thin legs and a neck like an ostrich. We knew the stranger was a bird, though, because it had wings and its body was covered with feathers. How crossly it looked at us. For a moment we were frightened, but we held our ground."

"What are you doing in this grove?" demanded the creature.

MRS. BOBOLINK WAS A BIT WORRIED AS TO WHAT PETER MIGHT BE THINKING.

"We flew in hoping to find a cool spot in the grasses. We are so very warm. Surely we can do no harm," twittered Mrs. Bobolink.

"Do let us stay for a while, kind sir," pleaded I knowing that wife was so tired that she would be ill if she did not rest and cool off."

The fierce fellow continued to stare at us. Would he draw us out of the grove? We watched him anxiously."

Reserves Run Winning Streak To Seven Contests

DEFEAT SPRINGFIELD TRAMPS 8 TO 5 IN FREE HITTING MATCH

Locals Out Hit And Are Wobbly In The Field But Able To Keep Jinx Working—McMichaels Good In Pinches.

By PHIL FRAME

RESERVES were apparently born at the start of the season with silver spoons in their mouths, for they are still holding on to those spoons as they rapidly near adults toward mid-season.

Although out for the first time this season, the Reserves preserved their winning streak and remain still undefeated as a result of again mopping up the Springfield Tramps 8 to 5 in a free-hitting match Sunday afternoon although it required a lot of tugging and straining to do it.

The victory ran the local nine's string of successive wins to seven in a row.

In the opening game of the season, the Reserves beat the Tramps 6 to 2 after breaking up a pitching duel in the eighth round.

The return contest Sunday was totally different as the visitors shed themselves of no fewer than twelve bingles while the Reserves were trailing along with ten hits, most of which were inserted at times where they would do the most good.

The old Bellbrook battery performed for the Reserves Sunday, McMichaels pitching his second game in a Reserve uniform, with Weller behind the plate. McMichaels was generous with hits but stingy with runs when the bases became crowded.

Hood, a right-hander, started in the box for Springfield and lasted less than two innings. During his administration on the hill, the local nine tabbed five runs. Valentine, Hood's successor, pitched effectively after the third inning, although somewhat wild. He walked five batters but offset this by fanning six batsmen.

Johnson had a perfect day at bat for the Reserves with two hits in two official times at bat. He also walked twice, was hit by a pitched ball and scored three runs in addition to stealing two bases. Durnbaugh, Barlow and Schlipf, who played right field, also harvested two safeties. Durnbaugh included a triple, the longest hit of the day, in his collection. Barlow's hits were both doubles. Every batter in the Springfield lineup hit safely at least once but Schwartz, Burk, Bates, Ferneau and Childers were the most accomplished sockers, each delivering a home run. Ferneau also batted 1.000 for the day, getting two singles and walking twice.

Reserves won the contest by their offensive might rather than defensive finesse as they committed four wobbles in the field. The Tramps played errorless ball. Childers handled eleven chances at second without the sign of a slip. Barlow also made some nice stops and throws in short.

Reserves opened up on Hood in the get-away inning by scoring two runs. Johnson walked, went to second on a passed ball and to third while Barlow was being thrown out at first. Conley singled to center, scoring him. Durnbaugh flied out but Tangeman was passed. Cyphers, playing under the handicap of a sore leg, Conley and sending Tangeman to third. Schlipf grounded to Covington for the final out.

The second inning saw Hood's retirement from the festivities. With two out, Johnson was hit by a pitched ball. He immediately stole second. Barlow doubled to right, and Johnson tallied. Barlow walked and Durnbaugh cleared the bases with a triple over Bates' head. Valentine replaced Hood and got Tangeman on a roller to short.

Two hits and two walks gave the Reserves two more runs in the third. Cyphers popped to third but Schlipf singled past third. Valentine temporarily lost control and passed both Weller and McMichaels, filling the bases. Johnson got a clean single, scoring Cyphers and Weller. McMichaels pulling up at third. Johnson stole second, but both runners were stranded when Barlow fanned and Conley popped to Burke.

Springfield had strokes of prosperity in the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds and were then washed up for the rest of the contest.

After being blanked for three innings, the visitors came to life in the fourth and pushed over two runs. Taking advantage of the inability of Cyphers to run, Burk beat out a bunt to third, his second straight hit. Bates forced him at second. Schwartz sacrificed Bates to second. Alpie singled to left, admitting Bates. Ferneau walked.

Childrens singled, scoring Alpie. McMichaels tried to catch Ferneau napping off second and threw wildly, permitting Ferneau to take third and Childrens second. Valentine ended it with a grounder, retiring the side.

Springfield added another in the fifth on successive singles by Covington and Barringer. Barlow's error on Burk's hard grounder, and a sacrifice fly by Bates, which enabled Covington to score after the catch and the other runners to advance a base. Schwartz hit to Conley, whose return throw caught Barringer at the plate. Alpie struck out for the last out.

Reserves tallied their final marker in the last of the fifth when Johnson walked, went to second when Valentine emitted a wild pitch, and scored on a hit by Barlow, which went for a double when Ferneau missed a driving catch.

Springfield obtained its final two runs in the sixth and then called it a day. Ferneau walked and went to third on a single to left by Childrens. On the double steal, Ferneau scored and Childrens reached second when Tangeman made a bad throw to second after a snap throw by Weller had caught Childrens too far off first base.

Valentine was out, McMichaels to Tangeman, Childrens taking third. He scored as Barlow was throwing Covington out at first. Springfield

BOWERSVILLE WINS FROM TRAMPS 9 TO 6; OUT HIT VISITORS

Dayton Team Gets Early Lead But Loses In Seventh

The Bowersville Bayliffs defeated the Dayton Tramps Sunday at Jamestown, 9 to 6.

The Bayliffs have had uphill battles every game this season, having come from behind each time, winning twice and losing twice.

Bowersville has registered thirteen hits in each of the last three games.

Gallagher drove in the winning run in the seventh after Smith, first up, was safe on an error by Bausman. Gallagher sent a long triple to center.

D. Murrell and Gallagher led the Bayliffs at bat with three hits out of four times up. Lucas drove in the last run of the game with a single to center. D. Murrell crossing the plate. After this Eaves relieved Hardin in the box and retired the side in order in the eighth.

Lucas, Bayliff pitcher, was back in form, allowing but eight hits and not more than two in any one inning, that in the fifth. His support was back with five errors behind him. The Tramps had two earned runs, while the Bayliffs got five earned runs.

E. Haughey's catch of a line drive to center with two runners on saved a lot of trouble for his team when he doubled the runner up at second and ended the game, as there was one down at the time.

Bausman and Huff obtained half of the Tramps' hits with two each. Huff hit a single and double, Bausman a double and triple. Hardin, Tramp hurler, was able to retire the Bayliffs in order in three innings but was ineffective with men on base.

Next Sunday, June 10, at 2:30 p. m. the Park Athletics of Springfield will make their second visit to Jamestown. R. Lucas against H. Lucas.

Lucas, Bayliff pitcher, was back in form, allowing but eight hits and not more than two in any one inning, that in the fifth. His support was back with five errors behind him. The Tramps had two earned runs, while the Bayliffs got five earned runs.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT OF HOME AND WIFE EXPECTED MONDAY

The Rev. J. Norman King, Bluffton, O., newly appointed superintendent of the O. S. and S. O. Home, was expected to arrive at the Home with Mrs. King, Monday. Mrs. King will also take up her position as head matron.

The Rev. Mr. King has had large experience in ministerial, welfare and teaching work. He was pastor of churches in Ohio from 1910 to 1917, chaplain in the army from 1917 to 1919 and since his army service has held pastorates in churches, first in Wapakoneta and then in Bluffton.

He was secretary of the Board of Control in Lima, O., 1919-1921 and was chief of the Probation Service Bureau, in the welfare department of the O. S. and S. O. Home, in 1927. He was also professor of economics and sociology at Bluffton College from 1921 to 1926 and was teacher of economics and sociology in the Bluffton High School 1927-1928.

He is the father of seven children who will come to the Home with the Rev. and Mrs. King.

Program of the band concert, sponsored jointly by Joseph P. Poodly Post, American Legion and Ohio Beta Beta Chapter, Phi Delta in the first inning, four in the third and another in the seventh.

Spring Valley chased over two runs in the first and one each in the sixth and seventh. The mass band is composed of musicians from the O. S. and S. O. Home, Springfield, Cedarville and other Greene County towns and is directed by Prof. H. E. Seall of the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band.

The concert is free to the public, but a free will offering will be taken. The program will be as follows:

New Colonial March, Hall Selection from "The Chocolate Soldier," Strauss. Baritone Solo—"The Rosary," Nevin. "The Glow-Worm"—Idyl, Lincke. "The Boy and the Birds," (Whistling Characteristic), Hager. Intermission (10 minutes).

March "University of Dayton," Panella Selection from "Rose Marie," Friml. "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," Friedman. "My Grandfather's Clock," Amsden. "Best Loved Irish Melodies," Hayes. March—"The Glorious South," Noel.

Popular numbers will be dispensed during the above program.

After it is alleged he rammed his right arm through the glass in the front door of the W. Main St. branch store of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, then entered and rifled the cash register of about $4.50 besides stealing a quantity of cigarettes, police found Leo Killeen, 27, lying on the ground in the rear of his home on W. Main St. shortly after midnight Saturday.

A neighbor heard the crash of broken glass and reported the incident to police. Patrolmen Fred Jones and Charles Thompson, assigned to investigate, traced Killeen by means of drops of blood. Killeen sustained a painful gash on his arm which was dressed at police headquarters by Dr. Paul D. Espey.

Charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct, Killeen pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs by Mayor John W. Prugh Monday morning.

Since the stolen money and cigarettes were recovered, the grocery company declined to prosecute on a theft charge.

Reserves Run Winning Streak To Seven Contests

DEFEAT SPRINGFIELD TRAMPS 8 TO 5 IN FREE HITTING MATCH

Locals Out Hit And Are Wobbly In The Field But Able To Keep Jinx Working—McMichaels Good In Pinches.

By PHIL FRAME
RESERVES were apparently born at the start of the season with silver spoons in their mouths, for they are still holding on to those spoons as they rapidly near adults toward mid-season.

Although outfit for the first time this season, the Reserves preserved their winning streak and remain still undefeated as a result of again mopping up the Springfield Tramps 8 to 5 in a free-hitting match Sunday afternoon although it required a lot of tugging and straining to do it.

The victory ran the local nine's string of successive wins to seven in a row.

In the opening game of the season, the Reserves beat the Tramps 6 to 2 after breaking up a pitching duel in the eighth round.

The return contest Sunday was totally different as the visitors shed themselves of no fewer than twelve bingles while the Reserves were trailing along with ten hits, most of which were inserted at times where they would do the most good.

The old Bellbrook battery performed for the Reserves Sunday, McMichaels pitching his second game in a Reserve uniform, with Weller behind the plate. McMichaels was generous with hits but stingy with runs when the bases became crowded.

Hood, a right-hander, started in the box for Springfield and lasted less than two innings. During his administration on the hill, the local nine tabbed five runs. Valentine, Hood's successor, pitched effectively after the third inning, although somewhat wild. He walked five batters but offset this by fanning six batters.

Johnson had a perfect day at bat for the Reserves with two hits in two official times at bat. He also walked twice, was hit by a pitched ball and scored three runs in addition to stealing two bases, Durnbaugh, Barlow and Schlipf, who played right field, also harvested two safeties. Durnbaugh included a triple, the longest hit of the day, in his collection. Barlow's hits were both doubles. Every batter in the Springfield lineup hit safely at least once but Schwartz, Burk, Bates, Ferneau and Children were the most accomplished, each delivering himself of two hits. Ferneau also batted 1,000 for the day, getting two singles and walking twice.

Reserves won the contest by their offensive might rather than defensive finesse as they committed four wobbles in the field. The Tramps played eleven chances at second without the sign of a slip. Barlow also made some nice stops and throws at short.

Reserves opened up on Hood in the get-away inning by scoring two runs. Johnson walked, went to second on a passed ball and then threw out at first. Conley singled to center, scoring him. Durnbaugh fled out but Tangeman was passed. Cyphers, playing under the handicap of a sore leg, doubled over the railroad, scoring Conley and sending Tangeman to third. Schlipf grounded to Covington for the final out.

The second inning saw Hood's retirement from the festivities. With two out, Johnson was hit by a pitched ball. He immediately stole second. Barlow doubled to right, and Johnson tallied. Conley walked and Durnbaugh cleared the bases with a triple over Bates' head. Valentine replaced Hood and got Tangeman on a roller to short.

Two hits and two walks gave the Reserves two more runs in the third. Cyphers popped to third but Schlipf singled past third. Valentine took over the lost control and passed both Weller and McMichaels, filling the bases. Johnson got a clean single, scoring Schlipf and Weller. McMichaels pulling up at third. Johnson stole second, but both runners were stranded when Barlow fanned and Conley popped to Burk.

Springfield had strokes of prosperity in the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds and were then washed up for the rest of the contest.

After being blanked for three innings, the visitors came to life in the fourth and pushed over two runs. Taking advantage of the inability of Cyphers to run, Burk beat out a bunt to third, his second straight hit. Bates forced him at second. Schwartz sacrificed Bates to second. Alpie singled to left, admitting Bates. Ferneau walked.

Children singled, scoring Alpie. McMichaels tried to catch Ferneau napping off second and threw wildly, permitting Ferneau to take third and Childrens second. Valentine ended it with a grounder, retiring the side.

Springfield added another in the fifth on successive singles by Covington and Barringer, Barlow's error on Burk's hard grounder, and a sacrifice fly by Bates, which enabled Covington to score after the catch and the other runners to advance a base. Schwartz hit to Conley, whose return throw caught Barringer at the plate. Alpie struck out for the last out.

Reserves tallied their final marker in the last of the fifth when Johnson walked, went to second when Valentine emitted a wild pitch, and scored on a hit by Barlow, which went for a double when Ferneau missed a driving catch.

Springfield obtained its final two runs in the sixth and then called it a day. Ferneau walked and went to third on a single to left by Children. On the double steal, Ferneau scored and Childrens reached second when Tangeman made a bad throw to second after a snap throw by Weller had caught Childrens too far off first base.

Valentine was out, McMichaels to Tangeman, Childrens taking third. He scored as Barlow was throwing Covington out at first. Springfield

BOWERSVILLE WINS FROM TRAMPS 9 TO 6; OUT HIT VISITORS

Dayton Team Gets Early Lead But Loses In Seventh

The Bowersville Bayliffs defeated the Dayton Tramps Sunday at Jamestown, 9 to 6.

The Bayliffs have had uphill battles every game this season, having come from behind each time, winning twice and losing twice.

Bowersville has registered thirteen hits in each of the last three games.

Gallagher drove in the winning run in the seventh after Smith, first up, was safe on an error by Fausman. Gallagher sent a long triple to center.

D. Murrell and Gallagher led the Bayliffs at bat with three hits out of four times up. Lucas drove in the last run of the game with a single to center. D. Murrell crossing the plate. After this Eaves retired Hardin in the box and retired the side in order in the eighth.

Lucas, Bayliff pitcher, was back in form, allowing but eight hits and not more than two in any one inning, that in the fifth. His support was had with five errors behind him. The Tramps had two earned runs, while the Bayliffs got five earned runs.

E. Haughey's catch of a line drive to center with two runners on saved a lot of trouble for his team when he doubled the runner up at second and ended the game, as there was one down at the time.

Bausman and Huff obtained half of the Tramps' hits with two each. Bausman hit a single and double. Huff a double and triple. Hardin, Tramp hurler, was able to retire the Bayliffs in order in three innings but was ineffective with men on base.

Next Sunday, June 10, at 2:30 p. m. the Park Athletics of Springfield will make their second visit to Jamestown this season and expect to pitch R. Lucas against H. Lucas of the Bayliffs. H. Lucas defeated his namesake the first game, the Bayliffs winning 6 to 2.

Admission for the rest of the season will be men twenty-five cents, women ten cents.

POSTAL RECEIPTS
SHOW BIG INCREASE

Receipts at the Xenia Post Office during May, 1928 showed nearly a 20 per cent increase over the corresponding month in 1927, according to monthly figures compiled by Postmaster C. S. Frazer.

Postal receipts in May, 1928 amounted to $4,091.54 as compared with receipts of $3,269.48 in the same month last year, an increase of $822.06, the report shows.

Personalities IN SPORT

JOHNNY RISKO

John Risko, heavyweight title contender, was born in Austria, Dec. 18, 1902.

Risko came to America as a child and settled with his folks in Cleveland, O. In a rough and tumble boyhood in the Ohio city first learned to use his fists.

As an amateur in 1922 and 1923, Johnny knocked out thirty-nine of the fifty-nine men he faced. He became a pro in 1924.

As a pro Johnny has won from Jack Delaney, Pauline Lundquist, Phil Scott, Joe Schyrra, Paul Benbenach and Romero Rojas. He has lost to Delaney, Tommy Loughran, Jimmy Slattery and Tom Heeney. He fought a no-decision with Gene Tunney.

When Heeney was matched to battle Tunney this summer for the world's heavyweight title, these were many who thought Risko should have been awarded the chance.

BLOOD FROM GASHED ARM LEADS POLICE TO ROBBERY ARREST

After it is alleged he rammed his right arm through the glass in the front door of the W. Main St. branch store of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, then entered and rifled the cash register of about $4.50 besides stealing a quantity of cigarettes, police found Leo Killen, 27, lying on the ground in the rear of his home on W. Main St. shortly after midnight Saturday.

A neighbor heard the crash of broken glass and reported the incident to police. Patrolmen Fred Jones and Charles Thompson, assigned to investigate, traced Killen by means of drops of blood. Killen sustained a painful gash on his arm which was dressed at police headquarters by Dr. Paul D. Espey.

Charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct, Killen pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs by Mayor John W. Prugh Monday morning.

Since the stolen money and cigarettes were recovered, the grocery company declined to prosecute on a theft charge.

Bowling

The Greene County Lumber Co., champions of the Xenia Recreation League, was beaten by sixty-seven pins in an exhibition, inter-city bowling match with a match team from the Dayton Royal Alleys at the local Recreation Parlor Saturday night.

Dayton rolled games of 921, 946 and 920 for a three-game total of 2,787. Xenia turned in scores of 969, 908 and then dropped to 843 for a series of 2,720.

Swindler led Xenia with a series of 604. Gaylor topped Dayton with 597. Box score:

WON'T GET SEED BACK
Some Ohio counties will not harvest as much wheat this summer, as was used to seed the fields last fall. Present conditions indicate that for the state as a whole, the yield would be about 3 1/2 bushels to the acre sown last fall. Enough wheat acreage has been abandoned to bring this yield up to about 10 1/2 bushels an acre on the wheat which is to be harvested.

These facts put Ohio in probably the worst position among the wheat producing states of the Union, this year, according to C. R. Arnold, of the rural economics department of the Ohio State University.

Indiana and Illinois have abandoned as great a percentage of their wheat which was winter-killed, as has Ohio. But the condition on May 1 of the wheat which remained standing, was better in those states than it was in Ohio. Missouri has abandoned about one-third instead of two-thirds of her winter wheat.

Winter wheat conditions in the United States are generally poor, but not so bad elsewhere as in Ohio and the soft winter wheat states to the west of Ohio. Only eight states show indications of a bigger harvest this year than last, and all of these are west of the Mississippi River. For the country as a whole, 25.1 per cent of the acreage has been abandoned. Under present conditions a production of 486 million bushels, or 12 per cent less than that of last year, is now estimated. Ohio probably will produce only 31 per cent as much as last year.

Who's Who and Timely Views

ART AND BEAUTY SEEN AS COMPELLING FACTOR IN AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT

By CALVIN COOLIDGE

President of the United States (Calvin Coolidge was born in Plymouth, Vt., in 1872. After having been graduated from the University of Vermont, Mr. Coolidge studied law with Hammond and Field, Northampton, Mass. He began practice at Northampton in 1897. Mr. Coolidge served as city solicitor of Northampton from 1900 to 1901; clerk of courts in 1904; member of general court of Massachusetts in 1907; mayor of Northampton from 1910 to 1911; member of state senate from 1912 to 1915 and governor of Massachusetts from 1919 to 1920. He was elected vice president of the United States for the term 1923 to 1925. Mr. Coolidge became president after the death of President Harding in 1923. He was elected president of the United States in 1924.)

While we have been devoted to the development of our material resources as a nation ought to be which needs the admonition to be diligent in business, we have not been neglectful of the higher things of life. In fact, I believe it can be demonstrated that the intellectual and normal awakening which characterized our people in their early experiences was the forerunner and foundation of the remarkable era of development in which we now live. But in the midst of all the swift-moving events, we have an increasing need for inspiration. Men and women become conscious that they must seek for satisfaction in something more than world success. They are moved with a desire to rise above themselves. It is but natural, therefore, that we should turn to the field of art.

In the development of an artistic sense and in ministering to the love of the beautiful, we naturally have sought examples of art of other years and other countries, as well as those of our own period and country. The assembling of these treasures in museums not only has made them available to the public, but has afforded the opportunity for comparison and study.

There are museums devoted to history and to science, and, more recently, to the industries as well as to art. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent in land, buildings and equipment to accommodate collections of inestimable value. It is said that it costs somewhere in the neighborhood of $25,000,000 a year to operate and maintain them.

It is especially the practical side of art that requires more emphasis. We need to put more effort into translating art into the daily life of the people. If we could surround ourselves with forms of beauty, the evil things of life would tend to disappear and our moral standards would be raised. Through our contact with the beautiful we see more of the truth and are brought into closer harmony with the infinite.

SPEEDER CAUGHT

Frank Bryan, Columbus, O., was at liberty under $25 appearance bond Monday, facing a hearing before Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court on a charge of reckless driving at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Bryan was arrested Saturday night by O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, who claimed the Columbus man was speeding at the rate of fifty-five miles an hour on the Springfield Pike near Spring Valley.

The officer had gone to Springfield to discuss with citizens of the village ways and means of curbing alleged speeding through the town.

Miss Hickman Held

Miss Mary Hickman, 18, sister of Edward Hickman, sentenced to die in California for the murder of Marion Parker, has been held in Kansas City, Mo., for investigation and examination for sanity. Police said she admitted obtaining clothing from stores under false pretences and added they feared she was developing kleptomaniac tendencies. Hickman's prosecutors fear his lawyers will use the incident in an insanity plea to save him.

SWEETHEARTS

CHAPTER LXIV

PLANS AND DETAILS

A week had passed since Lynda told Ralph that she would go with him. She had been to the office only long enough to tell Ralph's father that she would work for him no more, and to hint to him the decision she had made.

Now Ralph was back home—in the big house, where the white violets grew in teeming beds about the lawn, and where weeks before she had kissed him in sympathy for his bruises. It was there he had first told her that he loved her.

She phoned to him to say that she was coming. She knew that Ralph would send Wilson with the car. And while she waited, her whole past life came charging back to her. Now, as never before, she wished that her mother had not deserted her.

In the midst of all these thoughts, she heard the car stop at the curb. She hurried off to Ralph.

Lynda was surprised to find Ralph very quiet and solemn when she arrived.

He kissed her gravely, and whispered: "I will never let you regret this, my darling." Then he seated himself on the big divan, and pulled her down beside him.

"Tell me all your plans, dear heart," he said.

"I really have none, Ralph," she answered. "The only thing that I have in mind is that I must have some clothes for a long sea voyage." She blushed a little. "You see, I have very few dresses."

"Let me buy them for you, Lynda."

"No, Ralph. I'll buy my own clothes until—" She stopped, and her eyes grew misty. She could not say "until we are married," and she did not know what to call these arrangements they were making.

Ralph had never been so quiet. Although his eyes were very tender when they rested on Lynda, he did not offer to take her into his arms. She observed, however, that his hands were clutching the end of the divan until the nails were white.

Lynda wondered why she, herself, seemed so calm. She told Ralph that she was going to put her little home into the hands of the attorney who had been advising her. "After I leave it, I never want to see it again," she found herself saying, bitterly. "Claire is going abroad with Fred, and David Kenmore has gone out of my life."

"I hope after we are gone, Lynda, that young Kenmore will go back to my father. I wish he had had a son like him instead of a ne'er-do-well like me."

"David is a good man, Ralph. I do not know what I will do without his friendship."

"You don't have to give him up, Lynda."

"He has given me up, Ralph."

The tears were coursing down her cheeks now. Unashamed, she let them drop, one by one, into her lap.

"You will have to be awfully good to me to make up for David, Ralph."

"I hope fate will treat me as I treat you, my darling. When will you be ready to start for New York, Lynda?"

"I think I can go tomorrow night."

"Have you ever been there?"

"No, Ralph, but I will make out."

"I'll give you the name of a dressmaker, Lynda, who has made all the gowns for a friend of mine for years. She is not expensive," he told her, smiling.

He told her that to calm her fears. For himself he planned to call up Madame Milliere, and tell her that when Lynda came, to cut anything she might desire a third, and bill the difference to him.

"I will come to New York the last of next week, and we will sail on the first steamship on which reservations can be had. You had better stop at the Waldorf. It is old, staid, and deadly respectable. I will telegraph and get rooms; also I'll wire Madame Milliere that you will be there directly after lunch on Thursday. Ask the room clerk at the Waldorf for your reservation, and I'll also have a car at your disposal whenever you want to go shopping."

"Thank you, Ralph. That will make it very easy for me."

"I want to make your life easy and joyous from now on."

Ralph Armitage hesitated a moment, and his face fell into graver lines.

"Lynda," he said, "I feel very sorry for my father. He had been awfully good to me, always. Although he rather got me into a hole with my marriage, yet he thought he was doing a very best thing for me, and at that time he settled a half million dollars on me. This he doubled when my wife developed insanity, and he has made a will in my favor, although, heaven knows, I hope father will live until after I am gone. I'll turn over to you, half of what he has given me—"

"Wait a minute, Emily. Is David Kenmore in town?"

It stung her soul, those words. Like a wounded bird, fluttering to a haven, she battled poignant recollections. Her price! She had told Ralph's father so. And now that Ralph had mentioned it, it seared her youthful pride, and caused her to consider, and to wonder.

"Stop, Ralph!" she said, peremptorily. "Don't make me more ashamed than I am. I would rather come to you without all this talk of money."

"But, my dear, I want to safeguard you in every way and fortunately, such mercenary things must be talked about."

"Well, don't talk to me about it. I must leave you now, for I have a thousand things to do."

Ralph Armitage arose to his feet and pulled Lynda beside him. He twined her arms about his neck, then kissed her lips softly, tenderly, more as though he were bidding her goodbye forever than as though he expected to see her again in a few hours and would soon be with her for always.

Wilson drove Lynda back to town, and left her there. She went directly to the bank, and closed out her modest account, then to her lawyer, where she arranged disposition of her cottage.

On her way home she met Emily Andrews, who seemed to wish to pass her without speaking; but Lynda was determined to send some kind of a message to David.

"Wait a minute, Emily," Lynda said, placing a restraining hand upon her arm. "Is David Kenmore in town?"

Emily's head went high, her jaws set firm. Then they loosened.

"Why, do you know, Lynda, that boy had the nerve to tell me that he thought I had tried to put one over on him. But I came back, good and strong."

"Well, didn't I?" I asked your David. "I was so mad that I didn't care what he thought."

"At first you did. But I soon caught on, and from now on I wouldn't believe you under oath."

"That's what he said! Now, what do you think of that, Lynda, for David Kenmore to say to me?"

"I think he was just right," Lynda told her, curtly.

Emily Andrews looked at Lynda in astonishment, and then, without a word, she turned and left her. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Odd Glimpse of Hoover

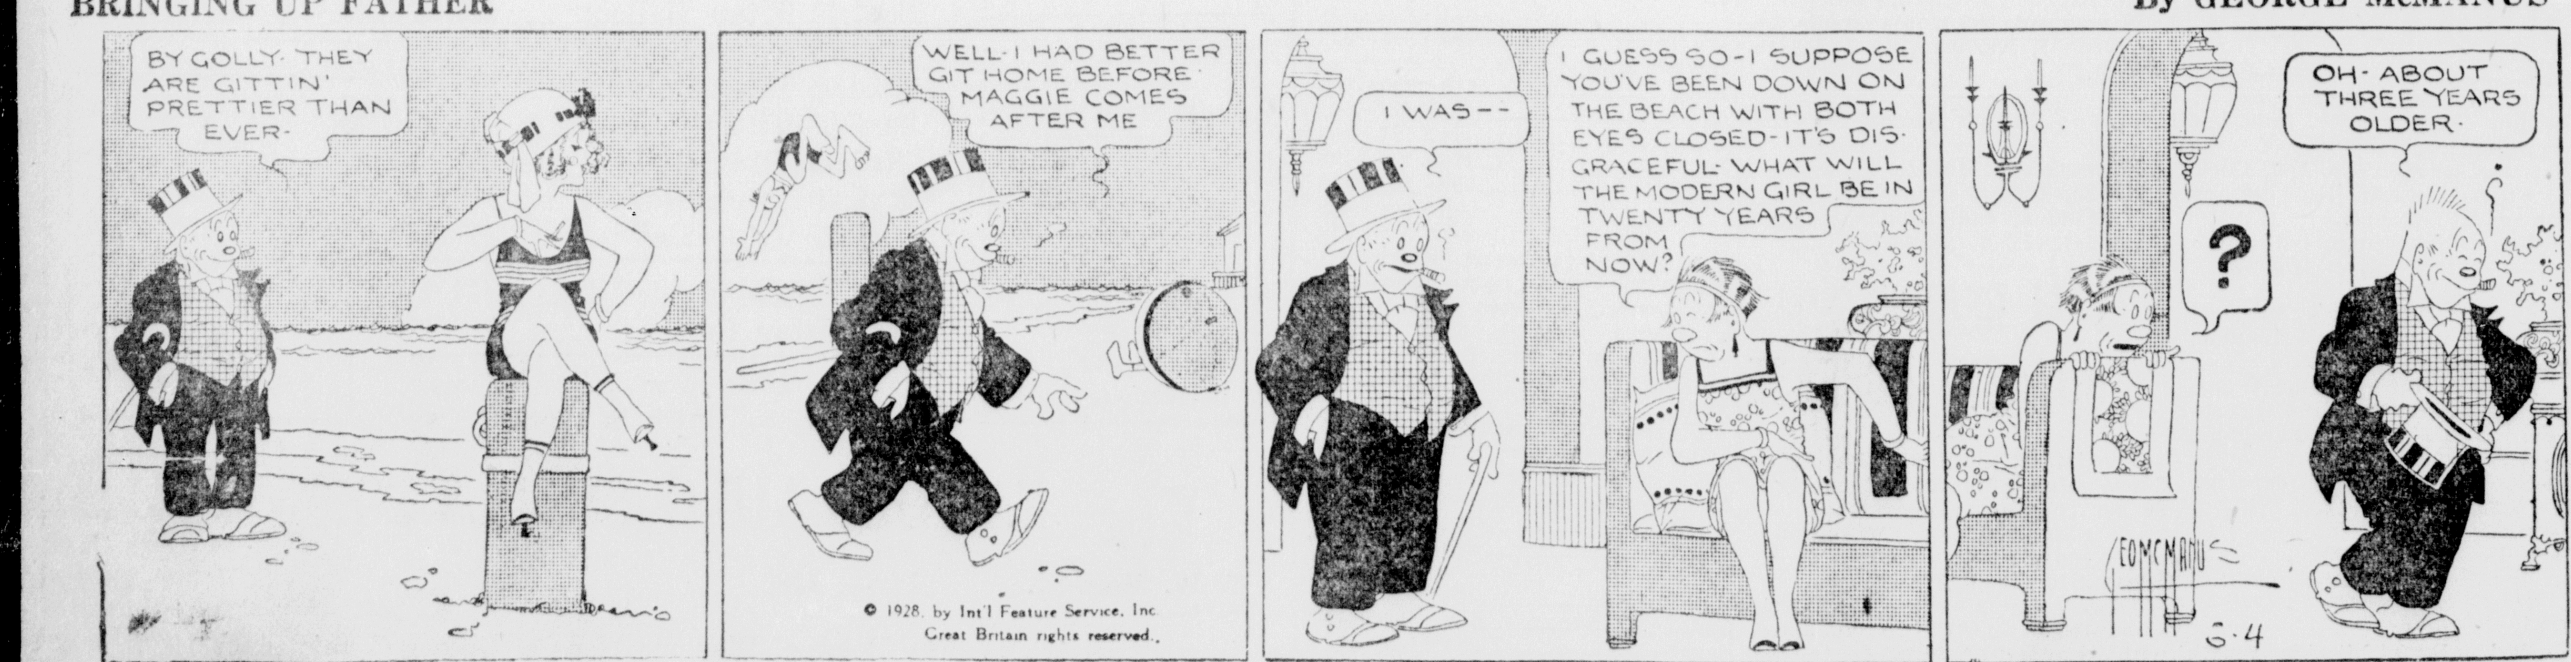

TAKING a peep into the old family album of the Hoover family, there would be found many cozy family groups—the customary old-fashioned "tintypes," and live, interesting pictures of family members and friends at work and at play.

The most that the old ones would bring forth would perhaps be the silly giggle of a very modern flapper and great astonishment at the tremendous amount of clothing worn by the women. Here is shown one picked at random. After a casual glance and perhaps a tolerant smile at the "old fashioned" group, let's find who they are.

At the left is Theodore J. (Tad) Hoover at the age of 20; Herbert C. Hoover at the age of 16, and, seated, Mary Hoover at the age of 14 when the family lived at Salem, Oregon.

Theodore is now head of the Engineering Department of Stanford University, California, and Herbert, present Secretary of Commerce, is candidate for President.

WON'T GET SEED BACK
Some Ohio counties will not harvest as much wheat this summer, as was used to seed the fields last fall. Present conditions indicate that for the state as a whole, the yield would be about 3 1/2 bushels to the acre, down last fall. Enough wheat acreage has been abandoned to bring this yield up to about 10 1/2 bushels an acre on the wheat which is to be harvested. These facts put Ohio in probably the worst position among the wheat producing states of the Union, this year, according to C. R. Arnold, of the rural economics department of the Ohio State University. Indiana and Illinois have abandoned as great a percentage of their wheat which was winter-killed, as has Ohio. But the condition on May 1 of the wheat which remained standing, was better in those states than it was in Ohio. Missouri has abandoned about one-third instead of two-thirds of her winter wheat. Winter wheat conditions in the United States are generally poor, but not so bad elsewhere as in Ohio and the soft winter wheat states to the west of Ohio. Only eight states show indications of a bigger harvest this year than last, and all of these are west of the Mississippi River. For the country as a whole, 25.1 per cent of the acreage has been abandoned. Under present conditions a production of 456 million bushels, or 12 per cent less than that of last year, is now estimated. Ohio probably will produce only 31 per cent as much as last year.

Who's Who and Timely Views
ART AND BEAUTY SEEN AS CONTROLLING FACTOR IN AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT
By CALVIN COOLIDGE
President of the United States (Calvin Coolidge was born in Plymouth, Vt., in 1872. After having been graduated from the University of Vermont, Mr. Coolidge studied law with Hammond and Field, Northampton, Mass. He began practice at Northampton in 1897. Mr. Coolidge served as city solicitor of Northampton from 1900 to 1901; clerk of courts in 1904; member of general court of Massachusetts in 1907; mayor of Northampton from 1910 to 1911; member of state senate from 1912 to 1915 and governor of Massachusetts from 1919 to 1920. He was elected vice president of the United States for the term 1923 to 1925. Mr. Coolidge became president after the death of President Harding in 1923. He was elected president of the United States in 1924.)
While we have been devoted to the development of our material resources as a nation ought to be which heads the admonition to be diligent in business, we have not been neglectful of the higher things of life. In fact, I believe it can be demonstrated that the intellectual and normal awakening which characterized our people in their early experiences was the forerunner and foundation of the remarkable era of development in which we now live. But in the midst of all the swift-moving events, we have an increasing need for inspiration. Men and women become conscious that they must seek for satisfaction in something more than world success. They are moved with a desire to rise above themselves. It is but natural, therefore, that we should turn to the field of art.
In the development of an artistic sense and in ministering to the love of the beautiful, we naturally have sought examples of art of other years and other countries, as well as those of our own period and country. The assembling of these treasures in museums not only has made them available to the public, but has afforded the opportunity for comparison and study.
There are museums devoted to history and to science, and, more recently, to the industries as well as to art. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent in land, buildings and equipment to accommodate collections of inestimable value. It is said that it costs somewhere in the neighborhood of $25,000,000 a year to operate and maintain them.
It is especially the practical side of art that requires more emphasis. We need to put more effort into translating art into the daily life of the people. If we could surround ourselves with forms of beauty, the evil things of life would tend to disappear and our moral standards would be raised. Through our contact with the beautiful we see more of the truth and are brought into closer harmony with the infinite.

CHAPTER LXIX

PLANS AND DETAILS
A week had passed since Lynda told Ralph that she would go with him. She had been to the office only long enough to tell Ralph's father that she would work for him no more, and to hint to him the decision she had made.

Now Ralph was back home—in the big house, where the white violets grew in teeming beds about the lawn, and where weeks before she had kissed him in sympathy for his bruises. It was there he had first told her that he loved her. She phoned to him to say that she was coming. She knew that Ralph would send Wilson with the car. And while she waited, her whole past life came charging back to her. Now, as never before, she wished that her mother had not deserted her.

In the midst of all these thoughts, she heard the car stop at the curb. She hurried off to Ralph. Lynda was surprised to find Ralph very quiet and solemn when she arrived.

He kissed her gravely, and whispered: "I will never let you regret this, my darling." Then he seated himself on the big divan, and pulled her down beside him.

"Tell me all your plans, dear heart," he said.

"I really have none, Ralph," she answered. "The only thing that I have in mind is that I must have some clothes for a long sea voyage." She blushed a little. "You see, I have very few dresses."

"Let me buy them for you, Lynda."

"No, Ralph, I'll buy my own clothes until—" She stopped, and her eyes grew misty. She could not say "until we are married," and she did not know what to call these arrangements, they were making.

Ralph had never been so quiet. Although his eyes were very tender when they rested on Lynda, he did not offer to take her into his arms. She observed, however, that his hands were clutching the end of the divan until the nails were white.

Lynda wondered why she, herself, seemed so calm. She told Ralph that she was going to put her little home into the hands of the attorney who had been advising her. "After I leave it, I never want to see it again," she found herself saying, bitterly. "Claire is going abroad with Fred, and David Kenmore has gone out of my life."

"I hope after we are gone, Lynda, that your father will go back to my father. I wish he had had a son like him instead of a ne'er-do-well like me."

"David is a good man, Ralph. I do not know what I will do without his friendship."

"You don't have to give him up, Lynda."

"He has given me up, Ralph."

The tears were coursing down her cheeks now. Unashamed, she let them drop, one by one, into her lap.

"You will have to be awfully good to me to make up for David, Ralph."

"I hope fate will treat me as I treat you, my darling. When will you be ready to start for New York, Lynda?"

"I think I can go tomorrow night."

"Have you ever been there?"

"No, Ralph, but I will make out."

"I'll give you the name of a dressmaker, Lynda, who has made all the gowns for a friend of mine for years. She is not expensive," he told her, smiling.

He told her that to calm her fears. For himself he planned to call up Madame Millfleur, and tell her that when Lynda came, to cut anything she might desire a third, and bill the difference to him.

"I will come to New York the last of next week, and we will sail on the first steamship on which reservations can be had. You had better stop at the Waldorf. It is old, staid, and deadly respectable. I will telegraph and get rooms; also I'll wire Madame Millfleur that you will be there directly after lunch on Thursday. Ask the room clerk at the Waldorf for your reservation, and I'll also have a car at your disposal whenever you want to go shopping."

"Thank you, Ralph. That will make it very easy for me."

"I want to make your life easy and joyous from now on."

Ralph Armitage hesitated a moment, and his face fell into a grave lines.

"Lynda," he said, "I feel very sorry for my father. He had been awfully good to me, always. Although he rather got me into a hole with my marriage, yet he thought he was doing the very best thing for me, and at that time he settled a half million dollars on me. This he doubled when my wife developed insanity, and he has made a will in my favor, although, heaven knows, I hope father will live until after I am gone. I'll turn over to you, half of what he has given me."

It stung her soul, those words. Like a wounded bird, fluttering to heaven, she battled poignant recollections. Her price! She had told Ralph's father so. And now that Ralph had mentioned it, it seared her youthful pride, and caused her to consider, and to wonder.

"Stop, Ralph!" she said, peremptorily. "Don't make me more ashamed than I am. I would rather come to you without all this talk of money."

"But, my dear, I want to safeguard you in every way and fortunately, such mercenary things must be talked about."

"Well, don't talk to me about it. I must leave you now, for I have a thousand things to do."

Ralph Armitage arose to his feet and pulled Lynda beside him. He twined her arms about his neck, then kissed her lips softly, tenderly, more as though he were bidding her good-bye forever than as though he expected to see her again in a few hours and would soon be with her for always.

Wilson drove Lynda back to town, and left her there. She went directly to the bank, and closed out her modest account, then to her lawyer, where she arranged disposition of her cottage.

On her way home she met Emily Andrews, who seemed to wish to pass her without speaking; but Lynda was determined to send some kind of a message to David.

"Wait a minute, Emily," Lynda said, placing a restraining hand upon her arm. "Is David Kenmore in town?"

Emily's head went high, her jaws set firm. Then they loosened.

"Why, do you know, Lynda, that boy had the nerve to tell me that he thought I had tried to put one over on him. But I came back, good and strong."

"Well, didn't I?" I asked your Davie. "I was so mad that I didn't care what he thought."

"At first you did. But I soon caught on, and from now on I wouldn't believe you under oath."

"That's what he said! Now, what do you think of that, Lynda, for David Kenmore to say to me?"

"I think he was just right," Lynda told her, curtly.

Emily Andrews looked at Lynda in astonishment, and then, without a word, she turned and left her.

Odd Glimpse of Hoover

TAKING a peep into the old family album of the Hoover family, there would be found many cozy family groupings—the customary old-fashioned "tintypes," and live, interesting pictures of family members and friends at work and at play. The most that the old ones would bring forth would perhaps be the silly giggle of a very modern flapper and great astonishment at the tremendous amount of clothing worn by the women. Here is shown one picked at random. After a casual glance and perhaps a tolerant smile at the "old flapper" group, let's find who they are.

At the left is Theodore J. (Ted) Hoover at the age of 20; Herbert C. Hoover at the age of 16, and, seated, Mary Hoover at the age of 14 when the family lived at Salem, Oregon.

Theodore is now head of the Engineering Department of Stanford University, California, and Herbert, present Secretary of Commerce, is candidate for President.

The Theater

The "little theater" of the movies joined the "little theater" of amateur stage players as a movement of national scope with announcement of awards in the first nation-wide amateur motion picture contest.

The contest, conducted by Photoplay Magazine, with the co-operation of the Amateur Cinema League, resulted in the awarding of the $500 first prize for a thirty-five millimeter production of the Motion Picture Club of the Oranges, East Orange, N. J., a group of thirteen amateurs, for its serio-comic photoplay "And How!"

Amateur-made films submitted from all parts of the country reveal a rapidly growing number of organized groups of players equipped with their own studios, technical staffs and apparatus for complete photoplay production.

Newspaper and magazine critics in the United States, England, Scotland, Germany and other countries are selecting the ten best pictures released during the last nine years. Critics are being asked to list pictures considered finest as entertainment, most qualified to rank in any list of films of all time and most apt to endure for the enjoyment of posterity. The four leaders to date are: David W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," Charles Chaplin's "The Gold Rush," Douglas Fairbanks' "Robin Hood" and Samuel Goldwyn's "Stella Dallas."

Billie Dove, one of the most beautiful of screen stars, and a capable actress, as well, comes to the Bijou Monday in "The Stolen Bride." As suggested by the title, the plot is replete with intrigue, romance and colorful scenes.

Twenty Years '08- Ago -'28

The president has signed the public buildings bill which includes an appropriation of $10,000 for the purchase of a lot for the erection of a postoffice in Xenia.

The Mitchell roadster, which is to be given away to the most popular person in Greene County by the Military Band this week, is expected by Fred Baldner, local agent for the firm, to arrive in two days.

Dr. J. S. Martin and Mr. Arthur Garfield started on a long spin in the doctor's new auto, driving to Mt. Vernon and then to London although it is a distance of more than 100 miles. Programs have been arranged for the Antioch Chautauqua and summer school.

NEPHEW OF FORMER
XENIAN IS PASTOR

Dr. John Henderson Moorehead, St. Louis, Mo., nephew of the late Dr. William G. Moorehead for many years president of the Xenia Theological Seminary, has been chosen pastor of Patterson Memorial Presbyterian Church, S. Brown St., Dayton.

He succeeds the Rev. David J. Good, who disappeared from Dayton six months ago and was last heard from in California.

Dr. Moorehead was formerly pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, Hamilton, O., and a member of the First Ohio Presbytery. He served in the World War enlisting at the time he was pastor of the First U. P. Church in St. Louis. Later he associated himself with the Presbyterian Church and has been pastor of the St. Louis Carondelet Presbyterian Church.

FORMER RESIDENT CLAIMED BY DEATH

Miss Lucy A. Linkhart, 87, died at her home in Lima, O., Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. She had been ill a week, with heart complications.

Miss Linkhart was born in Clinton County but had resided in Lima fifteen years. She formerly lived at Old Town.

Surviving are three brothers and one sister: James W. Linkhart, Springfield; O. W. Linkhart, Port William; Milo, Dayton and Mrs. Sarah J. Harner, 648 N. Detroit St., this city.

The remains were taken to the home of Mrs. Harner where funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m., with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS.
SARAH J. RIDENOUR

Mrs. Sarah Jane Ridenour, 85, widow of John Ridenour and former resident of Alpha, died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Viola Lyons, Greenville, O., Sunday at 6:20 a. m.

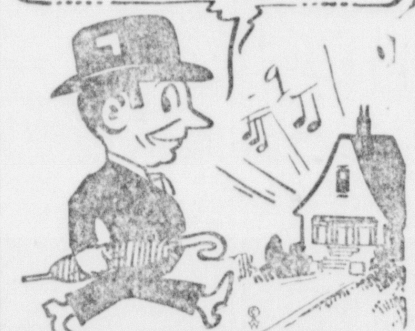

Her death followed a stroke of paralysis and was hastened by infirmities of age. Mrs. Ridenour resided at Alpha a number of years going to Greenville a year ago, after the death of her husband, to live with her niece.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m., at the Alpha M. E. Church with burial in Beaver Cemetery.

porter heard a little girl say. She coaxed her away from the milling throng, obtained the clue and an exclusive beat for her paper, and then went about getting the "sob story" which Fred Mollenkopf, her city editor, had sent her after.

Detectives questioned the slain girl's father and learned that he had sheltered Hoppe, his wife and infant boy several months ago when Hoppe had no place to take them.

The detectives went to Hoppe's home, a few blocks away. At that time the murder had been committed only five hours before. The slayer met them at the door. They asked to see his teeth. One was missing in front, but he put up such a bluff that they went away without him. He had answered all their questions, and they thought it impossible that he was the slayer.

Later they went back, questioned his wife, and she told them that Hoppe had burned some clothing that morning after she had shown him a newspaper teeming with the murder. The half-burned clothing, so soaked with blood that it could not all be burned, was found under the rear porch of the Hoppe home. Still he laughed at the charges.

Holds Out Long Time Hoppe was arrested and taken to the police station. For twenty-four hours he never flinched under the barrage of questions leveled at him by a dozen detectives. All the time the woman reporter remained near the room where the questioning was taking place. Around her were scores of veteran men reporters from many press associations and from many cities.

A plaster paris plate was reconstructed from the marks on the girl's body. It was identical to Hoppe's teeth. Still he declared he was innocent. Finger prints in the death car proved to be his, and still he calmly answered all questions.

Then Coroner Frank G. Kreft took out his penknife and prepared to scrape some dried blood from beneath Hoppe's finger nails to analyze. The slayer broke down and said he would tell all.

The barrage of questions stopped, and low talking was heard for nearly three hours, while the long confession was dictated. The woman newspaper reporter out-guessed the veterans of many other large stories, and telephoned her office that Hoppe was confessing.

An extra was prepared, and as soon as Police Chief Louis Haas entered the room crowded with reporters, and told them Hoppe had confessed, she ran to a telephone and gave the word that started a battery of presses in the Blade building. Extras were among the reporters before they could reach telegraph offices to flash the word of the confession.

Police Give Her Credit Then came words of praise to her that meant more than the scoop she had just scored, with a picture of the slayer alongside the story.

Inspector Jerry Buck walked up to her and said: "Well, that was a hot tip you gave us." It meant she was given credit for her capture.

Then the woman reporter, who was sent out to get a sob story, but who brought in the biggest local scoop in years, bought one of the extras and went home for a well-earned sleep.

This isn't the first big story she has handled. She covered the Sandusky-Lorain tornado of 1924, many were killed, the explosion set off by a maniac in the Bath, Mich., schoolhouse, which killed nearly two-score of children, the several clubber murders here, and other noted news events. But her biggest thrill of all was during the training Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard underwent for the championship fight here on the edge of Lake Erie. She and another reporter rowed out to an island to get a story and she had to bail water out of the rocking boat when a sudden storm nearly swamped it.

PLANE TWO-THIRDS OF FLIGHT TOWARD
SMALL ISLAND GOAL

"SOS" so that assistance can be rushed immediately.

Kingsford-Smith reported at noon (Greenwich Mean Time) that the plane was nearing Phoenix Islands. A little while later the Southern Cross dropped its way across the northern rim of this far away archipelago.

The following radiogram was received from the plane at midnight (G. M. T.):—"Position latitude, 2 degrees south, longitude, 171 degrees 33 minutes west. Altitude 1,400 feet speed 78 knots. Air not so good, but going well.

Weather reports from Suva this evening said that there was a full moon and a light breeze. Flying conditions were described as "perfect." The landing field was illuminated with searchlights in the event of a night landing.

HONOLULU, June 4.—Grinning at their uneven odds with death, four men in an airplane today were fighting tropical storms a mile and a half above the ocean in a daring attempt to be the first to span the treacherous reaches of the South Pacific.

They are the gallant crew of the tri-motored Fokker plane, Southern Cross; Capt. C. E. Kingsford-Smith, C. T. P. Ulm, Harry W. Lyons and James Warner, who reached here Friday after a non-stop flight from the mainland of California.

It was the first lap of their proposed 7,000-mile flight to Australia. With barely two days rest, the air-men yesterday morning climbed aboard their ship at Barking Sands field, on the neighboring island of Kauai and calmly set out on the longest over-water flight ever attempted.

Their destination is Suva, Fiji Islands, a little dot in the Southern Pacific, 3170 miles from Honolulu. As on the 2400-mile hop from California to Hawaii, the unfurling radio told the progress of the hazardous venture.

These messages told of storms and the struggle to rise above them with a missing motor as calmly as a man would say "good morning." These men, already reconciled to death, but fighting every minute to live, take their troubles lightly and in a jesting mood. Their radio quips flashing out of the darkness, are dramatic. For instance:

"A race between us and the clouds. Going to 10,000 (altitude). Going to be a bad night. Motors doing heavy pulling to 6,500."

That message was received at 9:40 last night, Pacific time. Five minutes later came this:

"Settling circling for altitude." Taking off from Barking Sands at 5:20 Sunday morning the huge plane circled the field once and then started a bee line for Suva. The radio told of eating away space at the rate of 100 miles per hour. The weather was reported fair and everything apparently was fine. Then suddenly came this sickening message:

"One motor sounds bad. Have dropped to sixty miles an hour." At that hour the plane was 1,000 miles out from Honolulu and 700 miles from the nearest land—the tiny Phoenix group of islands. For twenty minutes a watching world waited in anxiety. Then finally came this message:

"Motors not so steady, but no danger. Speed at present eighty knots."

Twenty-five agonizing minutes later came this:

"Have encountered many small rain storms and recently the starboard motor was sputtering. All O. K. now."

At midnight, Pacific coast time, the Southern Cross passed over the equator, 1670 miles from Barking Sands. The plane was averaging 100 miles an hour. Approximately 1500 uncertain miles and seventeen menacing hours were still ahead of the fliers.

At 1 o'clock this morning, Pacific time, the huge monoplane was in clear view of the constellation "Southern Cross" for which it was named.

The equator had been crossed, and the plane continued roaring on its way at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

Seventeen hundred miles of the dangerous hop from Kauai Island to Suva had been covered, and 1400 miles stretched ahead.

XENIAN IS PASTOR

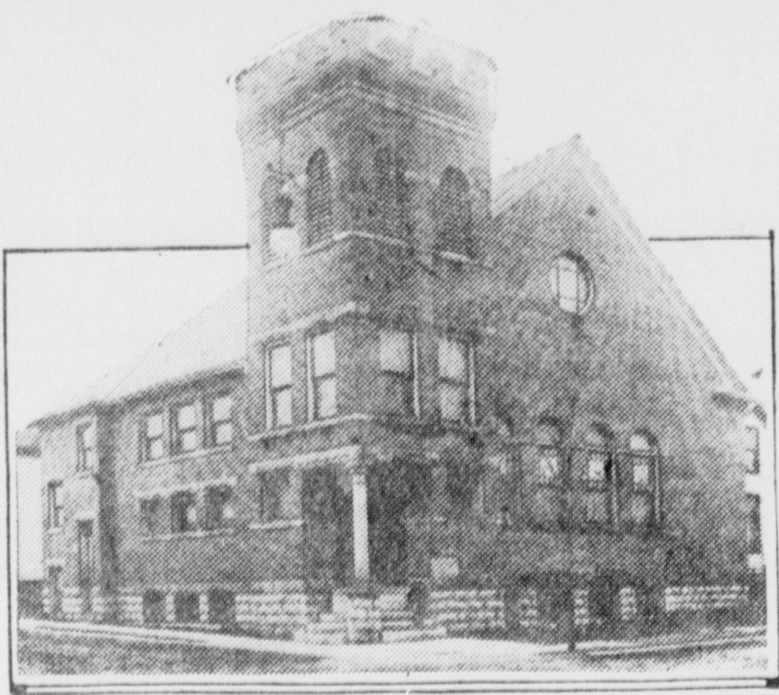

Dr. John Henderson Moorehead, St. Louis, Mo., nephew of the late Dr. William G. Moorehead for many years president of the Xenia Theological Seminary, has been chosen pastor of Patterson Memorial Presbyterian Church, S. Brown St., Dayton.

He succeeds the Rev. David J. Good, who disappeared from Dayton six months ago and was last heard from in California.

Dr. Moorehead was formerly pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, Hamilton, O., and a member of the First Ohio Presbytery. He served in the World War enlisting at the time he was pastor of the First U. P. Church in St. Louis. Later he associated himself with the Presbyterian Church and has been pastor of the St. Louis Carondelet Presbyterian Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Moorehead and two daughters will take up their residence in Dayton soon.

Anniversary services, celebrating the dedication of the church, were held during the entire day. The church was filled for three services, morning, afternoon and evening.

The altar was filled with flowers and potted plants and summer flowers made fragrant the entire auditorium.

Glenn Paxson, Wilmington, sang a solo at the morning service and the Misses Reva and Mary Dakin and Mrs. Grace Doster, Springfield, also sang. A basket dinner was served at noon in the church basement.

The afternoon was devoted to a "get-together" meeting when the time was given over to reminiscences and short talks by members. The Rev. Lewis Pimm, former pastor, now in Leesburg, and Mrs. Pimm gave short talks. Mrs. Jennie Curry of the Chester Church, near Wilmington, led devotions and spoke briefly, and a short talk was also given by Ralph Thornburg, Springfield.

Union services were held at the church in the evening, when the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, made the address. Solos were given by the Misses Dakin and short congratulatory talks were given by the other ministers and laymen.

"I believe Konjola is the best medicine on the market today to relieve cases of the common ailments," said Mrs. Murphy, "because it has worked wonders for me by restoring my health when I thought my case was hopeless."

"About three months ago I was taken ill with a serious ailment that was followed by weeks of coughing and a general run-down condition of my health. For days and even weeks at a time I would be so tired and worn-out that I was almost helpless. I could never do my work in the proper manner and felt half-sick all the time. I was subject to dizzy spells which would come over me and at any time. These were so severe that I would have to rest before I could continue my work. Even my nerves were affected and they were totally wrecked. At night I would lie and toss for hours before going to sleep. I hardly knew what it was to get a good night's sleep. These troubles were all partly due to the fact that I was troubled with indigestion. It seemed as though my food did not digest at all. It would simply form in the pit of my stomach and feel like a heavy rock. The terrible pains would stay with me for several hours and I often thought I could not stand the misery any longer."

"I was told of the wonderful results achieved by Konjola and I made up my mind to give it a trial. Today, after finishing several bottles of this medicine I feel years younger than I did before I took this medicine. I can go about my housework and I never tire out like I used to. The dizzy spells that formerly troubled me so much, left me some time ago and have never returned. Konjola has strengthened my nerves and I really get the rest that I need so badly at night. I am never bothered with those indigestion spells as I used to be and I can eat anything that I want without suffering the least bit afterward. In fact, my health has improved in every way and I am always filled with energy and vigor. Konjola has proved to be the most effective medicine that I have ever taken or heard of. I think that it is far in advance of anything else and I shall always strongly endorse it to others."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher drug store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

That message was received at 9:40 last night, Pacific time. Five minutes later came this:

"Still circling for altitude." Taking off from Barking Sands at 5:20 Sunday morning, the huge plane circled the field once and then started a bee line for Suva. The radio told of eating away space at the rate of 400 miles per hour. The weather was reported fair and everything apparently was fine. Then suddenly came this sickening message:

"One motor sounds bad. Have dropped to sixty miles an hour." At that hour the plane was 1,000 miles out from Honolulu and 700 miles from the nearest land—the tiny Phoenix group of islands.

For twenty minutes a watching world waited in anxiety. Then finally came this message: "Motors not so steady, but no danger. Speed at present eighty knots." Twenty-five agonizing minutes later came this:

"Have encountered many small rain storms and recently the star-board motor was sputtering. All O. K. now."

At midnight, Pacific coast time, the Southern Cross passed over the equator, 1670 miles from Barking Sands. The plane was averaging 100 miles an hour. Approximately 1500 uncertain miles and seventeen menacing hours were still ahead of the fliers.

At 1 o'clock this morning, Pacific time, the huge monoplane was in clear view of the constellation "Southern Cross" for which it was named.

The equator had been crossed, and the plane continued roaring on its way at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

Seventeen hundred miles of the dangerous hop from Kauai Island to Suva had been covered, and 1400 miles stretched ahead.

The annual session of the Springfield District convention that was held with the Middle Run Baptist Church, Saturday and Sunday, was an excellent meeting in every way. The state president of woman's work, Mrs. Edna Lewis of Akron, and Mrs. N. C. Smith, Columbus, superintendent of children's work, of the state were present and each made excellent addresses with much information for the delegates. Sunday morning, the pastor, the Rev. W. C. Allen, preached a very helpful missionary sermon. The afternoon session was brimful of many good things. Mrs. Mary Church of Urbana brought the message of service. Mrs. Eula Kennedy and Mrs. Jennie Humphrey took care of the children's hour with a beautiful program by the children. Many visitors from out-of-town were present together with pastors of the churches in the district, the Rev. R. J. Fleming, pastor of St. John's, Springfield and the Rev. E. W. B. Curry, of Second Baptist, Springfield. The following officers were all re-elected for the year:
